A SACRIFICE TO SHAME IN MOTHER'S FIGHT

Nine-year-old Lorraine Snyder, the real sufferer in the Snyder tragedy, may take the stand tomorrow in behalf of her mother, Mrs. Ruth Snyder. Lorraine, it is said, will tell of frequent quarrels between her father and mother, the woman permitting the little girl to be swirled into the whirlpool of intrigue and murder in an effort to save herself from the electric chair.

LLOYD GEORGE believes that China, after the present struggle, will take her place as a "new giant Japan." In Chiang Kai-Shek's wholesale execution of Communists Lloyd George sees Shek change from a wolf into a sheep dog, one friendly to Europeans, but putting Chinese rule first.

LLOYD GEORGE is one of the most intelligent living men, but in Chinese matters his opinion is only one guess among many.

To make a "Giant Japan" out of China it would be necessary to have Japanese people and Japanese character. China lacks them. You might as well talk of

RICH MAN'S BRIDE LEFT WAITING AS THE CHURCH CEREMONY IS HALTED

Worcester, May 2.—As the organ pealed forth the opening strains of a nuptial high mass and the voices of the choir wafted over the congregation filling St. Joseph's Church today, the priest suddenly left the altar, leaving dumbfounded the guests assembled for the wedding of Miss Beatrice Breault to Clarence L. Rocheford, wealthy contractor.

The wedding was cancelled even as the mass began, because of the mysterious disappearance of Rocheford. The bride-to-be, a pretty girl of 22, collapsed and is under a doctor's care.

Rocheford, one of the leading building contractors in central Massachusetts, left his home at 5 o'clock this morning, according to his father, Louis Rocheford, who was among those stunned by his failure to appear at the church.

He is thirty-eight years old and a widower, with four children. In his honor a testimonial dinner was tendered at the Hotel Bancroft Saturday night, with Mayor O'Hara among those in attendance, and he gave no hint then of a change of mind.

250,000 FLOOD VICTIMS HOOVER TELLS COOLIDGE

Pettyville, Ark., May 2 (A.P.).—Another break in the main drainage levee on the west side of Big Lake occurred today. The water started slowly sweeping over an area seven miles wide, territory heretofore untouched by the flood. Two other levees near Manila were reported weakening and a large crew of men are laboring on them. Two hundred flatboats, Coast Guard craft and Navy tugs are held in readiness for an imminent break at Echo on the Red River.

Washington, May 2 (A.P.).—A first-hand account of the desolation in the flooded areas was given to President Coolidge today by Secretary Hoover, who returned to Washington from a trip over the inundated territory.

Mr. Hoover, who conferred for an hour with the President and Secretary Davis, of the War Department, estimated that 250,000 persons had been forced out of their homes. He was confident that they would be relieved by the emergency organization set up by the Red Cross.

Mr. Hoover expects to return to the flood district Wednesday night. Until the effects of the breaks in

VANZETTI WILLING TO DIE FOR HIS BELIEFS

"I am willing and ready to die for my beliefs, but I am not guilty of the murder charged against me."

This, in a nutshell, is the crux of a statement written by Bartolomeo Vanzetti, which is to be presented to Governor Alvan T. Fuller within a few hours.

It was learned that the statement written by Vanzetti, who is scheduled to die during the week of July 10 for the murder of a South Braintree paymaster and his guard, is of a highly sensational character.

In the statement Vanzetti reiterates his belief as an anarchist, but emphatically denies he had any part in the South Braintree killing. He says he believes he is being "railroaded" to the death chair because of his beliefs.

The statement was turned over to William G. Thompson, counsel for Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco, when the attorney visited Dedham jail Saturday afternoon. Mr. Thompson spent Sunday going over it filling in a word here and there to make it readable English. He turned it over to a stenographer today for typing. The statement contains many typewritten pages. It is of such a sensa-

'LIVING DEAD' YOUTH RALLIES ON 11TH DAY

Roanoke, Va., May 2 (A.P.).—Prayers were spoken for Walter L. Boothe, eighteen, today as hundreds of his fellow-citizens watched with undiminished interest the coming of the eleventh day of his fight against death.

The telephone at Jefferson Hospital, where companions lifted and lowered his arms to force air into his lungs, rang almost constantly bringing messages of cheer and assurances of prayers in his behalf. Early today physicians say his pulse was fairly satisfactory and his condition improved after two severe sinking spells since he was stricken April 21.

Members of the respiratory corps, steadfast to the task they had undertaken, reported in systematic order, not only willing but eager to render service.

The boy's condition resulted from a fracture and dislocation of a vertebrae received in an automobile accident last May.

He was partially paralyzed when surgeons began an operation April 21.

Red Cross Calls for 10 Millions for Flood

WASHINGTON, May 2 (A.P.).—On recommendation of Secretary Hoover, the American Red Cross today asked the people of the United States to contribute a minimum of $10,000,000 to relieve the suffering in the Mississippi River flood area.

The fund has passed the $5,000,000 mark.

FIRE IN MINE DELAYS ATTEMPT TO RESCUE 77

Fairmont, W. Va., May 2 (A.P.).—Delayed 24 hours by a fire in the Everettsville mine, rescue workers today resumed exploration of the blast-torn tunnels intent upon determining the fate of 77 workers entombed since Saturday afternoon.

The rescue experts were agreed those trapped would be added officially to the sixteen known dead, twelve of whom were removed from the mine and the other four killed on the tipple.

A score of rescue men were led by George Macca, veteran of the United States Bureau of Mines, and J. V. Berry, chief safety engineer of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation.

Equipped with oxygen tanks, helmets and other emergency apparatus, the rescue men started to work forward at a point 3,000 feet in the mine, where a halt was called Sunday when tests of the air showing a mixture of gases revealed that a fire was raging further back.

RUTH BATTLES FOR LIFE LIKE 'CORNERED BEAST'; SNARLS: 'GRAY IS KILLER'

Long Island City, N. Y., May 2 (A. P.).—For three hour today Mrs. Ruth Snyder fought from the witness stand agains the pitiless examination of two lawyers seeking to send her t the electric chair for the murder of Albert Snyder, her art edito husband.

One lawyer represented the State and the other acted fo Henry Judd Gray, Mrs. Snyder's co-defendant, who she say is solely guilty, just as he lays the entire blame on her.

But for one brief flurry of tears, the blonde widow was in command of herself, snapping and snarling like a trainman cornered, but determined to fight to her last breath.

Mrs. Snyder charged on the stand that Gray killed her husband fo his $96,000 insurance.

RED SOX TRADE RIGNEY FOR MYER OF SENATORS

Washington, May 2, (A.P.).—Charles "Buddy" Meyers, shortstop of the Washington American League baseball club, was traded to the Boston Americans today for shortstop Emory Rigney.

Myer, who came to the Washington club from the Southern Association, displaced the veteran Roger Peckinpaugh as the regular shortstop last year. He has been a consistent batsman since entering the American League.

Rigney formerly played with Detroit. No cash was involved in the trade.

When first asked by the Boston Evening American concerning the Rigney-Myer deal, President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox stated that knew nothing about it, but ad that he had given Bill Carrigan per mission to make any trades h thought would strengthen the clu

Later in the day Quinn announ that he had received word from Carrigan that the deal had been m and at once confirmed it. Quinn Myer would join the Sox at Philadelphia today.

Snyder Trial Prosecutor ∾ Will Spare Little Lorraine ∾ Ordeal of Cross-Examination

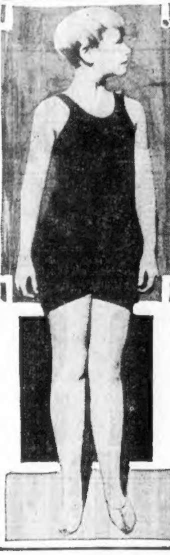
LORRAINE SNYDER IN HAPPIER DAYS

The most pitiable figure of the tragedy may take the stand today if the cross-examination of her mother is concluded in time. District Attorney Newcombe, who frowns on the plan to bring the child into court, announces he will not ask the nine-year-old girl any questions.



MISSES MOTHER

Lorraine, if called to the stand, will see her mother for the first time since she was arrested.

FACES DAY FULL OF ORDEALS

Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder, sketched above by Nell Brinkley, was asked a few more questions by her counsel and then faced the fire of Gray's attorney. District Attorney Newcombe will then try to break down her story. She faces another ordeal when Lorraine testifies.

Curious men and women have taken all kinds of chances to see the Snyder 'Slayers' in court. This girl scaled courthouse wall to peek through window, but was out of luck when policeman came along.

"but he knew how to get money out of me."

Edgar F. Haselton, Mrs. Snyder's lawyer, resumed the direct examination of his client immediately after court convened.

During her examination Friday, Mrs. Snyder had outlined her version of the crime, laying the entire blame on Gray, and so today's direct examination was the more or less perfunctory tying up of loose ends.

Gray was more alert than on any day since the trial opened. He held his head erect and whispered with his counsel as Mrs. Snyder testified. Mrs. Snyder had herself in good control and spoke with cool assurance.

At 10:17 A. M. Hazelton completed his examination and Attorney William Millard for Gray, began cross-examination.

Was "Done With Gray"

"Why did you put a quart of whiskey under the pillow in your mother's room the night of the murder?" Millard first questioned.

"Because he asked me to," answered Mrs. Snyder.

Q.—Did you receive a sashweight from Gray on March 5? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you do with it? A.—I put it in the cellar.

Why?—Because I was going to give it back to him.

Q.—Did you believe that was to be used in killing your husband? A.—I didn't know.

Q.—Why, if you knew he was going to use it to kill your husband, did you give it back to him? A.—I didn't want anything that Judd Gray gave me.

Q.—Did you warn your husband? A.—No.

Q.—Why? A.—I thought I could argue Judd Gray out of his plan and avert any trouble at all.

Q.—When you went to a card party that night, why did you leave the back door open? A.—Because I wanted to see Gray and end everything between us.

Q.—Did you get your husband drunk at the party? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you try to? A.—No.

Slain for Insurance

Q.—What was your husband's condition when you got home? A.—Normal.

Q.—Isn't it true that when you went to that party you knew just what was going to happen? A.—No; I fully intended to get rid of Judd Gray forever before he should do what he did do.

Q.—Why did Judd go to your house the night of March 19? A.—He was going home for the week-end and away the next week.

Q.—Had he ever been in your mother's room before while Albert Snyder was in the house? A.—No.

Q.—Why did you arrange for him to go there this time then? A.—He arranged it.

Q.—But you acceded. A.—Yes.

Q.—Why should Gray want to kill Albert Snyder? A.—For the insurance my husband carried.

Q.—But you were the beneficiary. He could only get the money through you? A.—That is true, but he knew how to get money from me. He had done it frequently.

Q.—Insurance is the only motive you can think of? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever tell Gray your husband had threatened your life? A.—I told him my husband had threatened me.

"Sorry for Husband"

Q.—Why did you get rid of Albert Snyder? A.—I didn't. Oh, I didn't.

Q.—You were sorry when he was killed? A.—I was.

Q.—"Why does your testimony here differ so from your sworn confession?" A.—"I didn't know what I was saying in the confession."

Mrs. Snyder then retold of meeting Gray in her mother's room, of feeling that he had rubber gloves on, and of leading him down stairs after he had said he intended to kill Snyder.

She said she took a pistol he had and laid it on the piano, then going upstairs.

Q.—You left him there with the pistol? A.—Yes.

Q.—Expecting him to kill your husband? A.—No, I had persuaded him to give up his plan and I thought he meant it when he told me he would not carry it out.

As the questioning went on, Gray took more and more interest, finally turning his gaze directly on his former mistress and keeping it riveted on her. It was the first time he had looked at her since the trial began.

Didn't Plan Poison Plot

Q.—Was that an accident, Ruth Snyder? A.—It was. I tripped over the tube and did not notice it.

Q.—Did you put a poison tablet in his medicine, Ruth Snyder? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you take a label off a bottle of poison and tell your husband it was bismuth? A.—What reason would I have for that?

Q.—Do you want me to answer that question, Ruth Snyder. (Silence.)

Q.—Didn't you try to kill your husband? A.—No.

Q.—Ruth Snyder, why don't you tell the truth?

Strenuous objection by counsel for the witness, sustained by the court.

Q.—When did you first believe Gray intended to kill your husband? A.—When I saw the sashweight.

Q.—Yet you did nothing to protect Albert Snyder? A.—I had confidence in my ability to get Gray out of the way."

Denies Strangling Mate

The questioning then went back to Mrs. Snyder's meeting with Gray in her mother's room and she continued to tell of her seeing the murder and trying to pull Gray from her husband's body.

As she reached the point in her story where she said she fainted and awoke to find her husband

Two Boston Women Will Help Battle Flood Epidemics

Two Boston women doctors will be among the trained health experts to go from Massachusetts to the Mississippi flood area in response to the urgent call for help from the United States Public Health Service.

Dr. Frederika Moore

Dr. Lila Owen Burbank

They are Dr. Frederika Moore, pediatrician in the State Department of Public Health, and Dr. Lilla Owen Burbank, No. 176 Huntington avenue, who volunteered for similar emergency service at the time of the San Francisco fire.

Another Boston doctor of wide experience who will go to the south is Dr. Edmond Klamke of No 1075 Beacon street, graduate of the University of Copenhagen and trained in public health work at Harvard.

A tremendous rush of applications is overwhelming the Massachusetts department, according to Dr. C. L. Scammon, right hand man of Commissioner George H. Bigelow in the State health service.

HUNDREDS FIGHT FIERCELY TO STRENGTHEN LEVEES

levees in the last 24 hours have been determined, he said, it would be impossible to map out any definite program of reconstruction.

New Orleans, May 2 (A.P.).—With the flood crest of the Mississippi moving past Vicksburg today, armies of men were fighting desperately to raise and strengthen the levees along the wide front from the mouth of the Red River to New Orleans where record stages are forecast between May 5 and 18.

Meantime, torrents of water flowing through four crevasses opened yesterday by the river south of Vidalia, opposite Natchez were completing the inundation of Concordia Parish, in East Central Louisiana, with the prospect that it would submerge parts of four adjoining parishes.

The flood along the Yazoo River in Mississippi also was spreading eastward, but a somewhat improved situation was reported in Southeastern Arkansas with the Arkansas River slowing falling and the flood waters through three breaks moving rapidly over into Northern Louisiana.

There was no change in the situation at New Orleans, the river guage standing stationary at 20.7 feet, due, engineers said, to the rapid flow of water through the artificial crevasse at Caernavan, fifteen miles south which was widened again today by the use of more dynamite.

A statement issued during the forenoon by the weather bureau, said the river here would change very little or fall slowly during the next few days. Before the Caernavan crevasse was created a steady rise here was predicted.

The river was rising steadily at Vicksburg, going up four-tenths of a foot overnight, due to the waters from the Stop's Landing break north of Greenville flowing back into the Mississippi through the Yazoo.

A fall of one-tenth of a foot was recorded at Baton Rouge, with the river stationary at Angola and Donaldsonville to the south.

A similar drop was recorded at Natchez as a result of the breaks at Glasscock and other points in Concordia Parish.

Serious situations were threatened along the Atchafalaya in Southern Louisiana, on the Ouachita in Northern Louisiana and on the Red River below Alexandria, La. The Red River had risen half a foot at that place, while at Monroe the Ouachita showed a rise of three-tenths of a foot.

Rescue and relief work in Louisiana is well organized and John M. Parker, flood director, said he anticipated little difficulty in safely evacuating the more than 70,000 persons who are likely to be affected by the floods during the present week.

K. of C. Supreme Board Gives $50,000 to Flood

New Haven, May 2 (A.P.).—An appropriation of $50,000 for Mississippi flood sufferers has been ordered by the supreme board of directors of the Knights of Columbus, meeting in Chicago, the executive offices of the order here were advised today. One-half the fund will be contributed to the American Red Cross fund and the other half will be administered by Knights of Columbus councils in the area affected by the flood.

LIMING DENIES CHARGE HUB IS ASLEEP

Boston is growing steadily, it possesses some of the "largest in the world" plants, its products wash and shave the universe and keep its feet shod.

These were a few of the things pointed out to the Editor of "Forbes Magazine" today by Melville D. Liming, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in a letter taking issue with statements in a recent article appearing in Forbes.

"The inference seems to be that Boston is asleep industrially," wrote Secretary Liming. "The writer who chose to compare Detroit and Los Angeles with Boston did not have at his disposal the facts regarding the steady industrial growth of Boston, and, far from being asleep, it is decidedly awake and active.

"In your article you neglected to state that Boston is the home of the largest shoe factory in the world; that it supplies the world with most safety razors and blades and keeps it clean through the product of one of the world's largest soap factories; that for the first time in New England history a blast furnace producing pig iron is located in Boston; that oil refining is another new industry in Boston and that sugar refining has long been one of our important industries.

"Within a month one of the largest branch plants of the Ford Motor Company has been opened in Boston. A further indication of growth is the new Statler Hotel, costing $19,000,000.

"Opposite the Statler has just been opened the largest public garage in the world, with a capacity of 2,000 cars.

"Within a stone's throw is a new motion picture theatre, comparing favorably with any in the country.

"In five years, from 1921 to 1925, the increase in value of the manufactured product of Metropolitan Boston amounted to $230,558,664, the total for 1925 being $1,256,198,204.

"In population, Metropolitan Boston has shown a substantial increase and adds a fair size city to its population every five years (1880, 674,021, and 1925, 1,808,845)."

URGES PRAYER AS MEANS TO HEAVEN

Dance halls, immoral books, improper movies and flippant plays were flayed by Cardinal O'Connell today in addressing 125 boys and girls in St. Cecelia's Church after confirming them.

"Life is never easy, it is very hard and full of temptation," said the Cardinal, "and as soldiers of Jesus Christ you should never weaken in the battle. There is only one way to carry on the battle and that is by constant vigilance. Fortify your souls morning, noon and night through prayer.

"Keep away from flippant playhouses. What good do you get out of them—nothing. Don't read books that you shouldn't. Keep away from bad moving pictures. Also keep away from dance halls.

"You are only injuring your souls by attending amusements that tend to corrupt your morals. Your mothers and fathers should not allow you to go to evil places of amusement and they should see that you keep proper company.

"You've got to work if you expect to enter into the Kingdom of Heaven. You can't attain it for nothing. You've got to go out and fight your battle and that means fighting yourself first.

"A good Christian should be willing to die for his religion if necessary. How many people are willing to die for anything today. They are not even willing to live for it. There is a softness and sloppiness today among many people.

"Hundreds of thousands of people think they are serving God by going to church once a week and dropping a penny in the contribution box—a sum they wouldn't give to a bootblack. You don't find this among the hard-working people. Their religion means something to them. You find it among snobbish people who have obtained a little money—then they begin to lose their solidness.

"Just as a man who inherits a fortune and fritters it away is a fool, so is the man who fritters away the religion he has inherited. Don't throw away the great gifts that God has given you.

Dreadnaught Floated ~ After 35-Hour Battle

50 MOTHERS IN FIGHT TO SHUT LYNN SCHOOL

Fifty Lynn mothers today demanded temporary closing of the Euclid Avenue School, where 12 pupils have become ill with diphtheria during the past week, three of them dying.

Blunt refusal met their demand and their leaders announced they would carry their fight to Mayor Ralph S. Bauer.

A request that the school, at least, be fumigated was also rejected by Dr. William T. Hopkins, health commissioner, and Superintendent of Schools Hervey S. Gruver, who, after a conference, rejected the first demand.

The officials were told that besides the three children who have died, the grandmother of one of them had also succumbed to the disease today.

Dr. Hopkins offered to give the Schick test to any of the 200 pupils whose parents are willing. Of 200 pupils, only 13 have undergone the voluntary Schick test this year, he declared, stating that this was the lowest percentage in any school in Lynn.

LACONIA, N. H., IS ON "FIRE LOSS HONOR ROLL"

Washington, May 2 (A.P.).—Governor Walker of Georgia today conferred bronze placques upon four cities for excellence in fire prevention. The plaques were awarded on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The grand prize went to Albany, Ga. The other winners were Milwaukee, Wis.; Huntington, W. Va., and Owensboro, Ky. Governor Walker said more than $500,000,000 worth of property, a sum equivalent to the cost of the Panama Canal, was sacrificed to fire in the United States last year.

Honorable mention in the fire prevention contest was given to Laconia, N. H.

$52,500 TO SAVE THE COLORADO

New York, May 2 (A.P.).—The mighty battleship Colorado today stood victor over treacherous Diamond Reef in a 35-hour battle which is estimated to have cost the government $1,500 an hour.

The 32,000 ton superdreadnought, which grounded on the reef, just off the Battery, Saturday while enroute to the Brooklyn Navy Yard on her arrival with the Atlantic fleet, was freed last night by the combined efforts of four mine sweepers, fourteen tugs and an unusually high tide.

An examination of the hull of the $27,000,000 ship will be made at the navy yard drydock today.

Before the successful pull was started thousands of tons of oil, ammunition and other stores were removed. The work of floating the ship was begun shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday morning and she finally glided into deep water at 8:19

SEEKS ESTATE OF EX-HUBBY

Providence, May 2 (A.P.).—Whether Mrs. Mary Heath McGraw, former Ziegfeld follies beauty, of Battle Creek, Mich., will share in the $70,000 estate of her late husband, Howard A. McGraw, from whom she obtained a divorce here in 1921, depends upon the decision of the Rhode Island Supreme Court, before which the case was argued today.

The divorce was obtained by an attorney since convicted and sentenced for operation of an alleged "divorce mill" here, and Mrs. McGraw now contends that it was fraudulent and invalid.

Mr. McGraw, who died in West Bloomfield, Mich., June 13, 1923, left all his property to his wife, in a will made in 1918. The Superior Court here has refused to set aside the divorce decree and it was an appeal from this decision which was argued today. Elizabeth J. Convery and William Howard McGraw, both of Detroit, are contesting the will.

MRS. SNYDER SOBS AGAIN UNDER CROSS FIRE

dead, she broke into tears, just as she did at this point in her story Friday.

She stifled her sobs to tell again of Gray forcing her to help make it appear that Snyder had been killed in a burglary

"You won't see me for a couple of months now," she quoted Gray as saying. "The insurance won't be paid till then."

Q. And you went through with his plan? A. I did. I didn't know where I was. I was confused and frightened.

Q. Isn't it true that in your mother's room you said to Judd Gray 'now is the time'? A. Never.

Q. Didn't you say 'Hurry, strike,' when he hesitated? A. No

Q.—Didn't you pour the chloroform on your husband's pillow? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you strangle him with wire? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever go to the East Side of New York with a man so that witnesses might see you, to frame up a divorce?

After a long hesitation Mrs. Snyder said: "I did."

A letter addressed to Gray from Mrs. Snyder was then introduced telling that the divorce plan procedure had "gone over beautifully." It ended: "My troubles are all over, dear. Sweetheart dear, I love you with all my heart and soul." February 28 was the date of cancellation."

Q.—Mrs. Snyder, how many men friends have you had besides Gray since your marriage? A.—None.

Never Planned Murder

Q.—You took a ten-day trip with Gray, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you tell him on that trip that Albert Snyder must be got out of the way? A.—I did not.

Mrs. Snyder was then handed the confession she made after her arrest and admitted her signature on it.

Q.—What parts, if any, of this confession are true? A.—My name and address.

Q.—What else? Mrs. Snyder here began reading the confession aloud, omitting all such parts as she thought were incorrect. The result was a meaningless chain of unrelated words and phrases.

The parts about her meeting with Gray and her relations with him she read in full.

She omitted from her reading all statements damaging to her and read all those placing guilt upon Gray. The parts of the confession she said were true comprised one-tenth of the confession.

As she read, Gray kept his head erect, but was no longer looking at her. He seemed to be sinkink slowly into the apathy of the last two weeks.

Judge Asks Question

When Mrs. Snyder had finished reading, Justice Scudder asked why she went to bed on the night of the murder before going to meet Gray.

"Because I wanted to handle the matter alone, get Gray out of the house, forever, without by husband knowing anything about it," she said.

Assistant District Attorney Proesell then began cross-examination for the State.

Q.—You told the Judge you wanted to get Judd Gray out of the house. Couldn't you have kept him out by locking the doors? A.—I wanted to—

Court Crowd "Titters"

Q.—Answer my question, Madam, yes or no.? A.—Yes.

The questioning then turned to show that Snyder had provided well for his wife and had taken his mother-in-law into his home.

Q.—Did you know that all his property would fall to you on his death because it was held in both names? A.—No.

Q.—Did you know you would not get it if he died by your hands? A.—I know nothing about it.

Q.—Of his $115 a week salary, how much did he give you? A.—$85.

Q.—And you say you were unhappy? A.—Yes.

Q.—You never did anything to make him unhappy? A.—Never.

Q.—Nothing? A.—Nothing he knew about.

At this point Mrs. Snyder's counsel objected to "tittering" in the court and Justice Scudder warned the spectators.

Q. He had no suspicions because you stayed out nights? A. He didn't.

Q. You thought when you were doing this, that you were putting it all over your husband? A. I did not.

Q. Did you think you were doing him a favor? A.—No.

Q.—When was your first quarrel with your husband? A. When the baby was born.

Q. What? A. I take that back. It was soon after my marriage

Q. Before marriage did you expect quarrels? A. No.

Q. And when you got them you thought that cause to deceive your husband? A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you know other men casually besides Gray? A. No.

Q. Did you know other salesmen as you know Gray? A. Only in a business way.

Q.—Did you ever have quarrels with your husband about your allowances? A.—Yes.

Q.—You had money in your own name in other banks? A.—Yes.

Q.—And where did you get this money? A.—From my mother.

Q.—In what other banks did you have these accounts? A.—Jamaica banks.

Q.—Don't you remember the names of banks in which you kept your personal accounts during the last two years? A.—I don't recall. I don't recall the exact name.

Q.—Savings or checking accounts? A.—Savings.

Proessel's questions were often shouted at the witness and she shouted back with growing vigor.

Q.—Money Gray borrowed from you—what account was that taken from? A.—The joint account of myself and my husband.

Husband Trusted Her

Q.—Didn't your husband ever question you about these checks? A.—No.

Q.—He trusted you so much? A.—Implicitly.

Q.—He had full confidence? A.—He did.

Q.—And you betrayed that confidence? A.—No.

Q.—You betrayed him with Gray, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Madame, did you hate your husband? A.—No.

Q.—Love him? A.—No.

The questioning then brought out that Snyder's boat, originally named the Jessie G. for a fiancee who had died was renamed the Ruth a month after Snyder's marriage to the defendant.

Insurance then became the topic of questioning again.

Q.—You wanted your husband heavily insured? A.—No.

Q.—But you wanted him to have more than he did? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you paid the premiums? A.—Out of our joint——.

Q.—Yes or no? A.—Yes.

Gray Half Smiles

Q.—Who invited the insurance agent to your house? A.—I did.

Q.—And your husband never saw that agent but one time? A.—No.

Q.—On that one occasion your husband took one $1,000 policy? A.—Yes.

Q.—He didn't agree to take $50,000 worth, did he? A.—No.

Q.—When the $50,000 policies were delivered, who got them? A.—I did.

Q.—What did you do with them? A.—Put them in a safe deposit box.

Q.—Did he have access to that box? A.—He did.

Q.—Through you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Not of his own right? A.—No.

Crowd Ignores Lunch

As the prosecutor bellowed at the witness, Gray showed keen interest, a twisting flicker that seemed almost a smile passing over his face when the answers seemed most damaging to his former "love mate."

Q.—When your husband and the agent were discussing insurance, were you interested? A.—Yes.

Attorney Proessel brought out that six premiums were paid on Snyder's insurance before his death and that it was a year and a half after the insurance was taken out that he was killed.

During this period Mrs. Snyder is charged by the State with having made several attempts on her husband's life—attempts she has already denied on the stand.

The courtroom was jammed to the last cranny, following the noon recess. Most of the spectators had denied themselves lunch to hold their seats and they were in a restless mood.

While the premium checks were being passed among the jurors, Mrs. Snyder sat impassive, but showing no sign of nervousness or strain. Gray sat upright, his head erect, seeming to have conquered the depression of the previous days.

It was brought out that although the insurance premiums were paid by Mrs. Snyder with checks from the book she used jointly with her husband, the corresponding stubs were not made out.

Q.—I suppose this fact just means you made a mistake? A.—Yes.

Q.—It was not that your husband would not kno wabout this insurance? A.—Absolutely not.

An account book kept by Mrs. Snyder supplementary to the check book was then entered as evidence over defense objection.

Entries in the book began in 1916 and continued until shortly before Snyder's death. Record was made in it of the $1,000 insurance policy taken out by Snyder at his wife's suggestion in November, 1925. But not of the $50,000 policies taken out for Snyder at almost the same time.

It is the State's contention that Snyder never knew of this insurance and that it was the motive for his murder by Mrs. Snyder and Gray.

Q.—When was it that you went to the insurance company to see about cancelling the $50,000 insurance? A.—Between the second and third premiums.

Q.—But you decided to let it run for three years? A.—Yes, I found that was the only way I could get back the premiums already paid.

Ruth Is 'Serious'

Q.—You realized this would mean spending $2,100 more before you got any back? A.—Yes.

Prossell then produced the policies and showed from the cash surrender tables that she would only have been able to get out $600 at the end of three years.

Q.—Do you mean to tell me that someone at the company told you that you'd get back all the money you put in? A.—I certainly do.

Q.—Did you never read these surrendered tables? A.—No.

Q.—Are you serious, Ruth Snyder? A.—I certainly am.

Q.—And who is the beneficiary of all this insurance? A.—I believe I am.

Q.—You believe you are? Here, look at them. A.—I am.

Q.—And you weren't sure until now? A.—No.

Q.—What? A.—Yes, yes, I was, of course.

Q.—Is the name of Henry Judd Gray mentioned in those papers? A.—No.

Q.—Then the only way he could get his hands on that money would be through you? Answer yes or no. A.—Yes.

Q.—And didn't you and Judd Gray plan how you would spend this money together? A.—Never.

Q.—You have neighbors named Mulhauser? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you remember saying to Mrs. Mulhauser "Albert has a lot of insurance that he knows nothing about?" A.—I certainly do not.

Q.—Did you meet Harry Folsom, who introduced you to Gray by his picking you up in a restaurant? A.—Oh, not me.

Q.—He picked up the woman with you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And she introduced him to you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you became friends? A.—Yes.

Q.—And he introduced you to Gray? A.—Yes.

Q.—On your first meeting with Gray did you go to his office? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—You had been faithful to your husband up to that time? A.—Yes.

Q.—The second time you met Gray he gave you a corset? A.—Yes.

Q.—You think that was proper? A.—No.

Q.—When were you first unfaithful to your husband with Gray? A.—September of 1925.

Q.—Then the first time you met Gray you made a date, the second time you got a corset for nothing, and the third time you broke your marriage vows for him? A.—Yes.

Q.—Some of the times you met Gray in the Waldorf you had your daughter with you? A.—Yes.

Tells of Night Clubs

Q.—Did you like Gray? A.—Yes.

Q.—How often did you go to the Waldorf with Gray? A.—I can't remember.

Q.—So many times you can't remember? A.—I wouldn't say that.

Q.—But it was more than once or twice? A.—Oh, yes.

Q.—Where else did you go? A.—To night clubs.

Q.—Do you dance? A.—A little.

Q.—But one can drink at night clubs? A.—Yes.

Prossel then named a dozen night clubs and roadhouses, but Mrs. Snyder said she had been to none of them.

Q.—Do you drink? A.—A little.

Q.—Have you ever used the expression, "Let's get plastered up"? A.—Often.

Q.—What does that expression mean?. A.—To have a good time.

Q.—It doesn't mean to get drunk? A.—Not when I say it.

Q.—When d Idyou and Gray first talk of killing your husband? A.—He talked of it from the end of last year.

The questioning suddenly swung back to the "plastered up" discussion as District Attorney Newcombe handed her a letter. Mrs. Snyder identified it as one she had written to Gray.

Q.—Dou you remember using this expression in the letter, 'Hon, let's get good and plastered. Aint that a nice word. Beginning to think I'm already that way on nothing'? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you meant just have a good time. A.—Yes.

Q.—Not get drunk? A.—No.

The letter opened "My own lover boy, oh, gee I'm happy. Tomorrow's [illegible] lucky day." It continued to tell of going to the movies and announced that "I could eat you all up, your darn lovable little cuss."

It ended with the injunction to "hurry home," and was signed "Momie."

Q.—Do you recall that this letter was dated Feb. 24 last, within a month of the murder of your husband? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Didn't you intend at that time to kill your husband? A.—I did not.

Q.—Where did you go on that ten-day trip of yours? A.—Up-State.

Q.—What cities? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Well, you went to Syracuse, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—At the Onondaga Hotel? A.—Yes.

Ruth 'Never Hired Man to Kill Her Husband'

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 2.—Under dramatic conditions Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder denied on the stand today that she had ever plotted, single-handed, to kill her husband. She voiced this denial while under the lashing cross-examination of Henry Judd Gray's counsel.

Q.—Did you ever give your husband a bichloride of mercury tablet when he had the hiccoughs? A.—No; the only poison I had in the house was what Gray sent me.

Q.—Didn't you, as a matter of fact, make several attempts to kill your husband? A.—I did not.

Q.—Didn't you once plan to hire a man to kill your husband?

Mrs. Snyder's voice broke here and she cried out: "I did not—never!"

STAGE STARS TO AID VICTIMS OF FLOOD

A benefit show, to be held for the relief of Mississippi River flood victims, will be given at the Metropolitan theatre Friday midnight. It is expected that practically all the stage stars now playing engagements in Boston will volunteer their services. All the receipts of the entertainment will be turned over to those in charge of the national relief fund. The Metropolitan midnight show is but one of many which are to be held all this week throughout the Publix circuit of houses in the East and Middle West.

Another benefit performance will be held at the State Theater Friday at Midnight. Wendell Hall the famous radio and record star has wired his hearty support and Frank Devoe with his song revue will also appear. The entire proceeds of the show will go to the fund raised in Boston.

MAN TRIES HARD TO DIE, BUT IT JUST WON'T TAKE

Newark, N. J., May (A.P.).—Slashing, stabbing, gas and two kinds of poison were used by John Storting, in an effort to end his life. None proving successful, he walked into St. James' hospital today and asked them to administer something that would kill him.

Physicians treated him and said he would recover. He refused to tell police why he desired to die.

tional nature that Mr. Thompson will leave it to the Governor to make it public, if he wishes.

WARNS GAVERNOR

Guy C. Reeve, chief of detectives of the Miami police department and a former agent of the U. S. Department of Justice, in a letter to Governor Fuller today urged that in event of a review of the case the Governor be "not influenced by men who are well known in their line of work and who are not openly radical, but under the guise of free speech are as radical as Sacco and Vanzetti."

Reeve, who says he is the brother of Judge Ralph W. Reeve, chief justice of the Lynn Municipal Court., participated according to his letters, in the radical raid made in New England in 1920.

GET WORD FROM WALSH.

Senator David I. Walsh today informed the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee that the United States Department of Justice had received only 343 letters, post-cards and other communications dealing with the case of the condemned radicals, instead of the thousands of communications that were reported as lying unopened in the vaults of the Government in Washington.

Senator Walsh was requested by the defense committee to use his good offices to have the Government open to the public all its files that related in any way to the case of Sacco and Vanzetti.

In answering the request of the Defense Committee, Senator Walsh inclosed copies of all the correspondence that has passed between himself and the Attorney-General's office regarding the Sacco-Vanzetti case. This correspondence included two "sample" letters which the Washington authorities sent to the writers of the various communications they received. Following is the letter Senator Walsh received from Attorney-General John G. Sargent:

The usual flood of petitions and letters regarding the Sacco-Vanzetti case poured in on Governor Fuller today.

The members of the Liberal Club of the College of the City of New York presented a petition signed by 250 members which called on the Governor to pardon Sacco and Vanzetti.

A telegram signed by Harold A. Lynch, chairman of a meeting of the Percey Stickney Grant Memorial Forum held at St. Mark's in the Bouwerie, New York, requests the Governor to conduct an investigation before permitting Sacco and Vanzetti to die in the electric chair.

WHEN HOME'S SWEET HOME

Miss Marion Cleveland of Albany inspecting the model home at the Boston Better Homes week exhibit, which was formally opened today by Governor Fuller.

BEST HOMES IN U. S. ASSERTS MRS. ROGERS

There could have been no revolution in China, nor could there have been an upheaval of the dynasty in Russia, had the spirit of "Better Homes" been abroad in those countries, Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers said today at the Copley Plaza luncheon inaugurating "Better Homes" week.

The luncheon was preliminary to the opening of the "Better Homes" exhibition in Huntington Hall and on which Governor Fuller has placed his stamp of approval for the Commonwealth.

"There is no country in the world whose homes are better than ours," declared Mrs. Rogers. "Let us make ours finer and better. Bostonians should own their own homes if at all possible and if building, they should build on American plans.

"Our Colonial style of architecture is far more simple and far more beautiful than the European."

Bishop William Lawrence, who retired yesterday, and former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, now president of the Chamber of Commerce, were among the speakers.

Mrs. William Brown Meloney, of New York, originator of the "Better Homes" movement, was a chief guest at the luncheon, and told her hearers just how she had come about developing her idea that is now being enlarged upon in many cities throughout the country.

There are many novel exhibits in the Huntington Hall show itself, one of those most attractive being the model house designed by younger members of the Y. W. C. A. as the home they would prefer and that they believe would be preferred by feminine youth.

Plans and model homes are also exhibited by the Harvard School of Architecture through its students' endeavors and ideas.

As an aid to the better home, the Massachusetts General Hospital has on exhibition the delineoscope, an instrument that has done wonders in the past few years, in connection with X-ray work, in making children well and strong again.

The Boston Social Service has an exhibition showing the improvement in living conditions among tenement dwellers, should model tenements be substituted for the ramshackle and insanitary structures now prevalent and occupied in some sections.

Then there is a Red Cross Life Saving classroom, manned by the Red Cross, exhibits showing how a back yard may be laid out, grassed and generally improved, so that children will prefer to remain there rather than seek the sidewalk and the streets for their play, and a myriad other equally attractive show spots in the general exhibition.

HANGING LINE, FALLS AND MAY LOSE LIFE

Michael Stanion, aged 61, of No. 1391 River street, Hyde Park, is on the danger list at the City Hospital as a result of a fall from the piazza of his second-story apartment. Stanion was hanging a clothes line when the railing of the piazza gave way and he fell to the ground. He suffered a fractured skull.

105 Years Old But Officials Forget It

Boston today forgot to put on her birthday clothes.

The Hub was established as a city just 105 years ago, but no official at City Hall remembered the fact.

"I'll put up the municipal flag at once," City Messenger Edward Leary announced, when newspapermen told him it was the city's birthday.

In years gone by the city's birthday was celebrated with much oratory, many parades, etc. The exact date of the birthday is May 1. Falling on Sunday this year, the celebration should have occurred today, if everyone connected with the official city life had not been so forgetful.

"SURPRISE PACKAGE" FOR POLICE RAIDERS

The funny thing about a police raid on the home of Dominick Moravito in Chelsea street, East Boston, for liquor and drugs, was that the police found no liquor but did collect a chest of "burglar tools" and Dominick's brother Carmin, of Worcester, as well as Dominick. Continuance until tomorrow and a pair of cells in lieu of $5,000 bail.

LAW PROVIDING OPERATION ON INSANE HELD VALID

Washington, May 2 (I.N.S.).—The Supreme Court today held valid the Virginia law providing for sterilization of inmates of the State insane epileptic and feeble-minded institutions in the discretion of the superintendents and a board.

The case was appealed by R. G. Sheldon, a guardian and next friend of Carrie Buck, an inmate of the institution.

Violation of the Fourteenth Federal Amendment was alleged by the appellant. The amendment in question prohibits States from enacting laws infringing on personal privileges of citizens.

POPE TO HOLD CONSISTORY TO NAME TWO CARDINALS

Rome, May 2 (A.P.).—According to reliable Vatican reports, Pope Pius will hold a consistory at the end of May or the beginning of June, creating two new cardinals, Monsignors Van Roey, archbishop of Malines (Belgium), and Augustus Hlond, archbishop of Posen (Poland).

At the same consistory, Cardinal Lauri, who was elevated at the consistory of last December, will receive the red hat. Cardinal Lauri is the Nuncio to Poland.

MAN'S BACK HURT WHEN STRUCK BY CAR TRUCK

Bert Howe, a car repairer, employed by the Boston & Maine Railroad at Mystic Wharf, Charlestown, sustained a possible fracture of the spine and injuries to his back, today, while underneath a car, which was jacked up, when he was struck in the back by the trucks of another car. He was removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

HALT WEDDING, GROOM GONE

in shape to permit of a honeymoon trip, is the only reason his father could give as possibly accounting for his disappearance.

When he did not arrive at Miss Breault's home in Plantation street prior to the hour set for the wedding, the girl and her parents realized something was amiss, but, arrayed in her wedding gown, the bride-to-be paced the floor and waited until the last moment in the hope he would appear.

As this hope faded at last, she fainted and the doctor was called. Her parents notified the church rectory by telephone that there would be no wedding.

Meanwhile, with the guests filling the church, Rev. Omer De Nomme commenced the mass in the belief the couple would arrive late.

Soon afterward he was told by another priest that the wedding was off, and he immediately turned and walked from the altar. The organist stopped playing and the choir broke off in the midst of their chant.

After a period of stunned silence, the guests arose and departed, while Rocheford's friends hurried to try to locate him by telephone and to start a widespread search in this city and surrounding cities and towns.

GIRL DEAD, FIVE HURT IN CRASH

struck the white rail safety fence and ripped away four by fours and uprights like matchwood. Without stopping the car then left the road, turned turtle, landed on its top in the brook and tossed mother, father and children into the air.

All were stunned. Little Eleanor and her mother lay where they landed. Lawrence Moors of Somerville, saw the crash, stopped his car and ran to their aid.

The section is one of few homes. Seeing there was little he could do, who was approaching the curve and Moore ran to the nearest house and phoned to Waltham police for an ambulance. The whole family was taken to the Waltham Hospital. Eleanor was dead on arrival. Her mother, suffering from a fractured skull, fractured right arm and left leg is in critical condition.

Lewis, his two daughters and son are all suffering from cuts, bruises, shock and possible internal injuries.

"Dead Man's Curve," near Terrace Gardens, Wayland, is one of the most dangerous spots on the Boston Post road. A number of fatal accidents occur there each year, and as in today's fatal crash, autos are in the middle of the dangerous curve before their drivers realize their predicament.

ACTOR SIGNS UP FOR 6TH WIFE

City Registrar Edward W. McGlenen, who has blushed for many a bride, ran up a Hub record today when his registry accepted a cash customer and signed up J. Theo. Murphy, actor, of the N. V. A. Club, New York, for marriage in Murphy's sixth venture.

Murphy said it was.

He will marry Aldena Marie Fanion Whitney, 27-year-old actress —28 years his junior—who discarded Jess William Whitney, husbans No. 1, at New Haven, last September, and carried the three children away with her.

Five times has Murphy been widowed. He was born in New York, but his mother fas born aboard ship on the Atlantic and his father in Belfast, Ireland.

The bride-to-be is signed as a resident in Shelton avenue, New Haven, with her birthplace at Spencer in the Bay State.

MISS PHELAN TO WED STUDENT

Marriage intentions between Miss Katherine Phelan, 24-year-old daughter of James J. Phelan, Boston banker, and Henry M. Lyons, 25, student engineer, of No. 117 Beacon street, were filed today at City Hall.

Miss Phelan's address is given as that of her father, No. 11 Chiswick road, in the Aberdeen section of Brighton.

No date was given for the marriage.

TEN DIVORCES GRANTED BY NORFOLK JUSTICE

On the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and desertion, ten divorces were granted in Norfolk Probate Court today where Judge Joseph R. McCoole presided.

The decrees were granted to Frederick H. Ayres, musician of Dedham, from Ruth L. He charged cruelty. They were married Oct. 13, 1925. Frank W. Everett of Brookline charged that when he moved from his Longwood avenue home his wife, Bessie, refused to accompany him. He was granted a decree for desertion. Charging Frank deserted her, Mrs. Mary A Bauwer of Sharon won a decree

Roy S. Conway of Milford was granted a divorce from Mary, grounds, desertion. Elizabeth Nourse of Quincy charged Walter deserted her. She was granted her decree. Stella R. Baum of Brookline charged George L. with cruelty. Pearl Bright of Quincy charged desertion Edna Hoagland charged desertion. Adeline Borlenghi of Winchendon charged Louis was cruel. Maude W. Murphy of Brookline charged Desmond with cruelty.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

Dear Anne:

Mary Cary's going abroad. She's off next month to see Europe on a hop, skip and a jump. And if I read the signs aright, she will have a marvelous time. She decided to go almost overnight, and then requisitioned us to help her in the shopping. And truly, Anne, I do think we assembled an outfit that is top o' the mode for both continents.

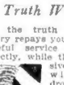
The Traveling Coat

Is pure chic from shoulder to hem. It has to be—for an ocean liner is naught but a sea-going hotel with a country club veranda. 'Tis a stunning green and white coat of soft wool fabric, with enough green and white check to make it smart and enough plain green to make it practical. And where do you suppose we found that coat? Doesn't some wise instinct whisper that it was at Silver's, 59 Temple Place? True enough, it was. We were fortunate enough to run into the new sale now going on, and bought it for $21.50. There's a large group of them at this price from sizes 16 to 46, marked down from $29 and $35 — sport tweeds, fancy weaves, kashas and twills in excellent lines and splendid tailoring. And anyone who has joined the frantic search for a smart coat of fine quality, at a moderate price, will thoroughly appreciate this particular sale at Silver's.

Mary Carries

A wise little head upon her shoulders. She started her preparations with a permanent wave. Or rather, she started with Mertin's Ultra Violet Ray treatment, so that her wave would look like naturally curly hair. You see, this treatment brings flexibility and strength up into the walls of the hair. It gives them such health and vitality that they cannot become broken by the twist or dry through the chemicals of permanent waving. Thus the wave is truly a broad, smooth wave, gleaming with natural lustre, without a hint of a kink or brittle dryness. The rays of the violet ray lamp beam down upon the scalp with a gentle, soothing warmth, coaxing the blood to bring up its wealth of rich nourishment. Mertin's are scalp and hair specialists in the Dexter Building, 453 Washington Street. (They are featuring a special hair cutting at 40c and a special price on a permanent wave of $12.)

Truth Will Out



And the truth is—that your hosiery repays you with long and grateful service when washed correctly, while the most expensive silk stockings will wilt and droop if strong soaps are rudely rubbed into their sensitive fibres. So use a lukewarm solution of soap flakes, or some mild soap, and rinse your stockings in them gently, first turning them inside out. This coaxes the dirt to let go and dissolve into the water, rather than on the inside of the stocking. Don't rub the soap in—any alkali harms animal fibre—and always wash them inside out. This word of warning comes from Lanfield's, 8 Winter Street, and with it comes the special offer of the week—All-Silk to welt service chiffon hose for $1.35 a pair, long length, full fashioned, splendid weight hosiery at a greatly reduced price, with the free repair service included. And the added suggestion that Landfield's has a full new line of rayonette and crepe de chine underwear.

The Norfolk Hosiery Co.

Proved a very present help on the underwear question. Perhaps you didn't know that they are having a clean out sale of rayon underwear down there with simply marvelous values. (Norfolk Hosiery Co. is on the street floor arcade of the Little Building, 80 Boylston Street.) Charming little step-ins, most daintily tailored and piquot, are now $1.00 instead of $1.55. Chemises that were $2.98 are selling for $2; slips with deep shadow proof hem and nightgowns are the same, with vests reduced to $1.00. And there's a combination in hosiery that we'd never met before—a pair of plain all-silk chiffon of the $2.00 quality, selling together with a pair of the new chiffons with the contrasting heel (usually $2.25) for $3.25—a straight saving of $1.00. Of course we stocked up on undies and hosiery, and went our way rejoicing.

Traveling's a Strain

On the best complexion, so we didn't leave creams and astringents for last minute shopping, but went straight across Boylston Street to Meyer Jonasson's toilet goods department and made sure of the Lesquendieu products. For the fastidious woman who cares—I'd always advise the Lesquendieu creams — the Cleansing cream—Creme de Fleur au Boquet, as fragrant as the flowers of Paris, made of its finest oils, which banishes the grime from the skin and keeps it as soft as the petal of a rose. This is $1.75 a jar. And the finishing cream—Creme-de-Peche—which gives the exquisite velvet finish of a peach and forms the foundation for the powder—this is $2.00. Both are invaluable in having and holding the skin which allures and charms with its radiant perfection.

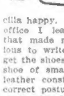
For the Astringent

We chose Virozol, the great Swedish Face Bath. And there at Meyer Jonasson Company we found it in the large 8 ounce size for $2.00 as well as in the 4 ounce $1.25 bottles, which was lucky for Mary, as there's nothing like Virozol to wipe away the dust of a day's sight-seing, eliminate the poisons of fatigue and refresh her for the evening fun. It is gentle, soothing, yet leaves a trail of absolute cleanliness. It quickens the blood, revives the muscles and rests the nerves. Your skin loves its cool touch and responds to it eagerly. For the traveler as well as the business woman, for the home maker as well as those in the professions, Virozol is invaluable for retaining the freshness, the strength and firm young contour of the skin.

We Found

Frocks for daylight, frocks for starlight and frocks that will sway 'neath the golden gleam of lanterns, when we went to Evelyn's, 8 Winter Street, for Mary's dinner dress. Evelyn has exquisite frocks for every hour—a rack full of them for $9.75, dresses both light and dark for the girl or her mother around $13.75 and her suits—those modish suits of skirt, blouse and jacket are but $16.50. And we wavered long in our choice. There was a tailored model of Yo-San silk in blue and white with touches of delicate petit point ($13.75), a darling costume of a rich silky lace blouse over a skirt of finely pleated georgette ($13.75) and one of printed orchid georgette. When Mary slipped into this latter, she breathed a rapturous "Oooooh!" and I knew it was hers. This, too, was $13.75.

At This Point

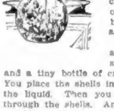


Your Priscilla sought the administrations of Dr. Allen P. Saul, Podiatrist-Chiropodist, at 110 Tremont Street, room 312, who had been highly recommended to her for scientific care of the feet. Goodness, Anne, a bit of work on my feet, together with a slight massage and exercise, certainly made your Priscilla happy. And in his pleasant office I learned of something that made me more than anxious to write to you. Here we get the shoes of our dreams—the shoe of smart cut, soft, pliable leather constructed for comfort, correct posture and support, expertly fitted and with built-in arch supports for our individual condition—for only $8.00. We choose the style we wish from a dozen or more excellent models and within a week they are ready for us—comfortable, right and of finest quality throughout. I just had to order a pair of them then and there, as the slender, stunning design of them proved irresistible.

Home Again

And now for the tub. In a few moments I'll be as fresh as a daisy with all fatigue gone, not a worry nor a wrinkle, not even a care. For I'll add a few drops of emerald magic to that bath which turns it into a fragrant forest pool, deep among the pines, where every drop is an exhilarating tonic, yet soothing and relaxing to the nerves. A few moments in this relieves the tension and strain and puts you right with the world. It is Swiss Pine Bath—Lacpinin Balsam, it is called—the essence of pine needles distilled from the forests of Switzerland. You can buy it at Meyer Jonasson's toilet goods department for $2.00 a bottle.

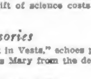
Another Shipment Has Come to Penn, The Florist



Of the Magic Chemical Gardens. Please tell our friends about them, Anne, for hundreds went to Penn's, 124 Tremont Street, when first they heard the news, and were disappointed to find them already sold. The second shipment melted away, too, before the overwhelming demand. But the third lot has come—just in time for Mothers' Day. Have you bought yours yet? Have you seen the miraculous crystals develop into ferns and trees, roots and tendrils, when dropped into the chemical liquid? If not, I want to send you one, for if you follow the directions on the box, you will see one of the wonders of the age develop before your very eyes.

In the box you will find a glass globe about six inches in diameter, an envelope of shells, a piece of crimson wax, a can of liquid and a tiny bottle of crystals, which look like coarse grained sand. You place the shells in the bowl, the wax upon them, and pour in the liquid. Then you drop in the crystals, spreading them well through the shells. And instantly the miracle begins. Fairy ferns unfold toward the cover of the bowl, shrubbery grows before your eyes, flowers bloom and brown roots coil themselves around the shells —and it becomes a crystal garden in colors of gold, emerald, cobalt and crimson. Then it petrifies—never fading, nor changing—an ornament of wondrous beauty, exquisite in its perfection. And yet—though you may not believe it—this lovely gift of science costs but $1.50, complete, at Penn's, The Florist.

"Switch Your Accessories



If you would be smart," cables Paris. "Invest in Vests," echoes practical Patsy. "Find them at Filene's," murmurs Mary from the depths of her recent experience.

And that's the secret of the whole matter of clever dressing. One suit serves a multitude of occasions by the simple change of accessories. A vestee of snowy madras with the mannish lapel collar, double breasted front and six wondrous pearl buttons, topped with a gardenia on your jacket, is the essence of tailored chic for business hours. One of delicate blue crepe de chine with the classic vionnet neck, set off with a long droopy spray of Spring flowers in pastel tones, accommodates itself to afternoon tea, or "dinner in town." And fortunately for our varied days and limited purses, Filene's have found all types and kinds for us at remarkably moderate cost. Those of the silky madras are but $2.50. In either the tailored type, or in the softly feminine square neck. And silk vestees proudly bearing Italian hemstitching (imitation), with backs of cool and porous net, are the same price. There are vests with embroidered medallions, in every color of the mode, and in smart prints. There are some with short sleeves, no sleeves, and we discovered to our delight, that upon the second floor, you can get them with long sleeves ($3.75). All are made with an eye to the tub, all follow the latest whim of elusive Fashion, and truly, they are the smartest, most practical and economical vests that ever gave the finishing touch to a suit.

"Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary,

How does your garden grow?" "Oh, Priscilla, it's lovely—the most beautiful garden I ever had, with 'silver shells and cockle-bells,' all sitting in a row." You see, it's the garden of "Holeproof" hosiery, grown under the glass of the big counter right inside the door at Talbot's, 395 Washington Street.

Lucille, Dame Fashion's right hand maid, designed its colors with all the art and dexterity of a true Parisian, taking her tints and tones from my flowers of long ago. From my palest morning rose she caught a delicate tint and called it "Petale." From the honey gold in the depths of a lily she found "Yvonne." "Delis" is the silvery gray neath the leaves of a birch, and Lalour the shadow of a cloud upon it. So the garden of "Holeproof" is my own garden, made from its most exquisite colors for girls like me to wear upon their feet when they dance through the flower hours of life.

And I've planted them all in a row, here in the front counter. Every one of the season's colors, labeled and arranged for your convenience. There's Fleur-de-Lis, Fanchon, Yvonne and Petale. Here's French Nude, Valerie, Celeste and Grain with Maxime, Lido and Muscade over there. Here's my Chanel, Gun Metal, Gray beige Moonlight and Delis and there's Paris mist, Laleur, Renard and Mauve Taupe. They come in all the grades and sizes, from the sheer $1.00 chiffons and lustrous service weights, to the wondrous $1.95 variety Exquisite hosiery, Priscilla, apparently as sheer as the mist at dawn, but fashioned of long, strong silk with a strength stronger than steel.

If Mary Could, She Would

Sing us the song of the shirt, too. For Talbot's have just announced the glad news that they have acquired the same splendid broadcloth shirts which caused the avalanche last year and are selling them at the same price of $1.35. You remember those shirts, Anne. You couldn't have forgotten them. Made by a famous house, with a generous cut and a large full body. Shirts with a sheen which reveals the fine quality of broadcloth used in their making and whose finish shows the same care, the same expert attention to detail that identifies the work of this house. They come in the two new styles of collar, the one with the long point and the one of medium length, and also with the neck band. Broadcloth shirts of this quality at a price of $1.35, or three for $4.00, form one of the brightest stars that ever sparkled in the sky of the Talbot Company, and it's no wonder the rockets are flying and wires humming to announce it to the towns of New England.

Keeping step with the broadcloth shirts are the broadcloth pajamas. The first company of them marched over the counters and away before half the demand had been met. But another shipment is in, and broadcloth pajamas in blue, tan, gray, lavender and white are now at Talbot's, 395 Washington Street, for $1.95 a set. A fine quality broadcloth, in firm, fast colors, adorned with rayon frogs in white—what more could one ask?

Smart Costumes

Should look to their hats. And no one knows it better than Mary, so when we said, "Now for the hat," she started for the Butterfly Hat Shop. And as soon as we entered that adorable little shop, up on the sixth floor of the Ambassador Building, at 41 Winter Street, a distinctive black felt settled down upon her head, and folded its wings to stay. It was one of those clever creations where straw combines with felt to make a soft silky rippling brim, and an odd twist of black ribbon in the rear announces that "it's what's back of the hat that counts." Another felt of gray with gros grain inserts of pastel colors slipped into one of those smart orange and black hat boxes and decided to travel, too. Rose Herbert's hats range from $8, $10, $12.50 and $15, and are just about the most Parisian bits of feminine headwear in Boston.

'Tis Dollar Week

At the Seasonal Sales Store, 54 Chauncy Street. Just about a month ago they had their phenomenal values on curtains, linens and rugs. And now the weeks have rolled around until the great event has come again. Dollar Week at the Seasonal Sales Store means dainty cottage sets of exquisite voile, with ruffles, dotted or plain, and some with blue lace edging at $1.00 a pair. It means flat curtains of hard twist voile, either ruffled or lace edges or plain hemstitched. And sash curtains of cross barred muslin, three pair and four pair for $1.00. It means all linen luncheon sets with 36-inch cloth and four napkins for $1.00. And three big bath towels for the same price. In fact, it means a store full of opportunities to add to, your linen supply and the Summer beauty of your home at little cost during Dollar Week at Seasonal Sales Store.

"I Never Knew

The Leo Pass Shop was like this," they said, when we took them down there last Saturday. And they didn't know. They didn't realize the marvelous style of his dresses, the utter quality of them, and the opportunity offered to get exclusive merchandise at moderate cost, with the convenience of his time payment terms. I wish you could see those new washable flat crepes of his—priced at only $15 and $16.75—in salmon, rose, gray, yellow, blue and monkey skin. Gorgeous material, exquisite drawn work, tiny pleats, snappy belts, or soft, ruffly georgette vests. Some have—but what's the use, Anne. They're beyond my powers of description, but I'll guarantee that you never saw anything finer in Boston or New York for the slender girl at that price. (Room 210 Nottingham Building, 25 Huntington Avenue.)

Should She Bob

Or should she not? Yes—no—perhaps — and yet how could we know, for after all — it's only guess work for us. But L. Max knows. He knows every curve and line that makes for beauty. He can tell in an instant whether a girl is taking a step toward her greatest point of charm, or whether she is not. A few moments under his keen eyes, one nod or shake of his wise gray head—and the question is settled, and settled rightly. But if you've been bobbed once with his approval, you'll do it again, for Summer is coming and a bob is the coolest thing there is With the new Max Swirl Permanent, it is the most convenient and beautiful—a wide, soft and glossy wave which is truly permanent—molded, clipped and swirled into lines that gloriously frame your face. For appointment call Congress 6821, or go to L. Max for a consultation, 154 Boylston Street.

The Moment

Mary knew she was going, she dashed off to Peggy Perry, and Peggy made her one of those clever costumes of hers—a Summer version of the print-and-plain compose in the blouse and straight skirt mode — most correct for the street with a coat, and super-smart when warm weather throws the coat jauntily over one arm, or discards it altogether. The beauty of Peggy's dresses is that they have that elusive million-dollar air, at a moderate price. In fact, she charges but $12 for making any dress, whether a straight frock with a play for slim lines or the picturesque basque, whether an exquisite creation for a bride, the "sweet girl graduate," or for our tailored business hours. The price is always the same—$12. But you supply your own materials. Peggy Perry's dressmaking shop is on the 11th floor of the Dexter Building, 453 Washington Street.

Another Star

is shining in my crown today, for I've made the acquaintance of the Studio Apparel Shop, up in the New Studio Building, 110 Tremont Street. It's one of those small select shops which buys each dress carefully and individually, and enables the business girl to wear clothing more truly distinctive than her wealthier sisters generally find. And the nicest part is—I discovered this shop just as they were about to announce a sweeping sale of $13.75—clearing the racks to make room for the more fluttery Summery fabrics. So there are tailored crepes and chiffons, georgettes and crepe-de-chines — being sold for $13.75. The model sketched is one of them—a lovely embroidered georgette of black over a shell pink slip. They carry coats, too, from $22.50 to $59.75—and best of all—they are glad to have your charge account.

Caliri

Gives a splendid permanent wave. I'm becoming more and more impressed with the reputation he is gaining, and from all sides hear expressions of pleased satisfaction. He uses the Fredericks method, with the Vita tonic compound to insure the health of the hair and the permanency of the wave. And he is one of the few operators who are skilled experts in the all important twist. That lovely, curling, swirling effect comes from the twist, you know—not too loose, or it will not hold the curl, not too tight or the walls of the hair are broken—but in the quick, deft way in which Caliri does it—and the wave is a joy to behold. In fact, for a smart hair cut, almost sculptured to your personality, for a shampoo, marcel or finger wave, for hair tinting, or any branch of beauty culture—Caliri is a master craftsman, and in his shop in room 37, at 2 Park Square, he is doing remarkable work. His phone is Hancock 6431.

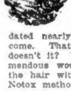
Springtime

Flower-time, bird-time and baby-time. Yes, the season's come when Mother Earth smiles and rolls nearer the sun to warm her young. She is ready for them all and has prepared a royal welcome. Someone else has prepared for the babies, too. At the Sanders Maternity & Baby Shop—lately moved from the Lawrence Building to big new quarters at 177 Tremont Street—mothers find everything waiting. From cribs and carriages, scales and bassinettes, from dainty hand made bonnets ($1.00) to complete layettes, everything is there for his pleasure and comfort. One of those layettes costs but $12.50 complete, with silk and wool shirts, hand made dresses, gertrudes, pads, blankets, bootees, jackets and all. And the mother's needs are cared for, too, with the dresses, slips and supports to carry her through the days of waiting. Miss Sanders' shop is a quiet and delightful place to rest and plan for the coming of his majesty—the baby!

But Babies

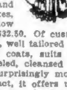
Grow up. Tiny cherubs in rompers grow into little girls—bigger girls —and need a lot of pretty, practical dresses. Then their mothers are glad to hear of the Betsy Anne dresses, at the Betsy Anne Dress Shop, 37 Temple Place, over T. D. Whitney's. The Betsy Anne dresses are sold direct from the maker to the wearer at an exceptionally low cost—considering the material, hand work and style which goes into them. Only ever fast fabrics are used—fast to soap and boiling, to sun or rain, to everything they will encounter And these fabrics—these sateens broadcloths, dimities and voiles, the playtime prints, linens and ginghams are made up into the most delightful styles ever devised for children. They run from sizes 4 to 12, and cost between $5 and $10.

The Poll Parrot



Beauty Salons are the most popular Nestle Circuline permanent waving shops in Boston. I visited the great shop at 177 Tremont Street today to see the famous Fountain of Youth, and was astonished to find ten permanent waving machines installed and every one in use And the appointment book was dated nearly solid for days to come. That speaks for itself doesn't it? Yes, they do a tremendous work there—in dyeing the hair with the Nesteen and Notox method, which is not affected by the permanent wave; in testing the hair with the Nestle Text-O-Meter to ascertain the proper treatment, and in giving a wave of supreme satisfaction. One hundred chairs—Anne—and thirty booths, counting their three big shops together—this one at 177 Tremont Street, the one at 41 Winter and the shop at 10 Scollay Square. In fact, it's the largest beauty salon in New England. Phone, Cong. 6495; Cong. 5846.

An Announcement



has come to me for you. It's from Parker Bros., at 110 Tremont Street, that splendid shop I mentioned last week. It tells of fur coats relined for $15, stored and remodeled from $35 to $50. Of ready made dresses, coats and suits for the particular woman, in smart styles and the finest makes, at prices as low as $10.75 and $32.50. Of custom made garments, well tailored and "different." Of coats, suits and dresses, remodeled, cleansed and pressed at a surprisingly moderate cost. In fact, it offers us a welcome service in selecting our clothing and keeping it up-to-date and in the pink of condition—with the other welcome service, too, of the ten-payment plan, which enables us to get better things than we usually can afford, if we pay for them all at once. Parker Bros.' telephone number is Congress 8242, should you want further information.

Faithfully yours,

Priscilla

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

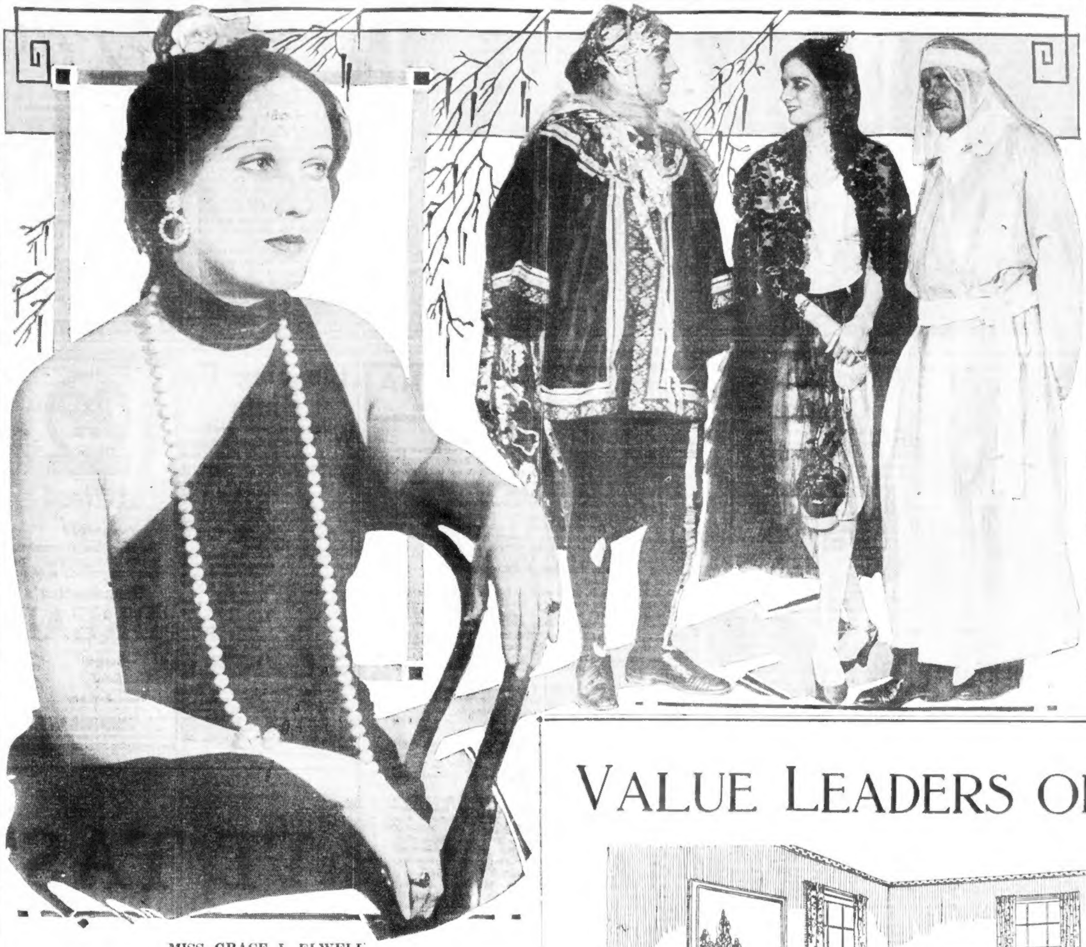
Many Notables on Their Way Abroad to Disport in Favorite Playgrounds

SOCIETY IS GOING A-traveling in great numbers. Both the steamship France and the steamship Samaria, now outbound for foreign shores, have aboard interesting Bostonians sailing on interesting foreign journeys. There are Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, prominent in the town's exclusive set, who are sailing away on the France for several weeks of foreign wanderings. Mrs. Wadsworth was the former Mrs. Nancy Whitman Scull, prominent in Washington before her marriage with Mr. Wadsworth brought her to a smart Boston environment.

THE GEORGE W. VAILLANTS, that family of inveterate travelers seldom to be found for protracted periods at their Commonwealth avenue home, are sailing on the France for favorite playgrounds on the other side. Mr. and Mrs. Vaillant and Miss Constance Vaillant, Mrs. Winston Hagen and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stagg are in the Vaillant group. Mrs. Hagen is of Park avenue, New York, and the Staggs are from Central America, where Mr. Stagg is concerned in large business enterprises, planting and such. Mr. Stephen Bowen is also a passenger on the France.

THE SAMARIA'S PASSENGER list takes on importance from the name of Mrs. Thomas Lindall Winthrop of Beacon street, a matron distinctively Bostonian, who is making her annual European pilgrimage. Miss Lucy Lowell of the Hotel Ludlow is on the Samaria's list. So also are Mrs. Henry N. Bigelow and Miss Rosamund Bigelow of Brookline, Mrs. Samuel Carr of Commonwealth avenue and Dr. and Mrs. Edward Clark Streeter. I hear that Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames and her attractive daughter, Miss Mary Ames, are sailing home soon after a tour of Northern Africa, the new Society playground.

IN RETROSPECT, THE FINE Arts Ball lingers in the memory as a series of pictures sumptuously costumed. There was one group that included two charming girls picturesquely Spanish after the Raquel Meller manner. Miss Grace I. Elwell wore dull black crepe without a suspicion of color, relieved only and most effectively by enormous pearl beads in ropes and bracelets. Miss Katherine Conklin added to her Meller creation a glint of silver and a dash of crimson and achieved a triumph. Leighton Rollins was an English courtier in black and silver, and Guy Warren Walker, 2d, was one of the marshals in bright blue and white.



MISS GRACE I. ELWELL

Whose black crepe costume with just a dash of color and enormous pearl beads in ropes and bracelets achieved a striking effect at the Fine Arts ball. Leighton Rollins wore the black and silver costume of an English courtier, Miss Katherine Conklin a Meller creation with a glint of silver and dash of crimson, and Guy Walker, 2d, was one of the marshals in blue and white. (Boston Evening American Staff Photo)

AND NOW, THE FINE ARTS BALL DECORATIVELY WRIT DOWN on the social scroll, comes the Cotton Ball to give Society its final fling at the fancy costume affair. Everyone is out to do the most original thing with the most original of materials. And since cotton in these days is—to the sight and touch—anything but cotton, the results are bound to be extraordinary. Velvet and silk and tissue and lace are the materials that good old cotton now resembles, and costumes are resultantly elaborate and colorful.

EVER SO MANY SMART HOSTESSES ARE ASSEMBLING THEIR dinner groups. Mrs. Louis Curtis, Jr., is entertaining a dozen guests. Mr. and Mrs. William Whitman, Jr., have an interesting group of guests bidden to dinner, some thirty in number. The Philip Saltonstalls are entertaining. Mr. and Mrs. Channing Wells of Brimmer street are also giving a large dinner. The Cotton Ball will be doubly interesting because there some of the next Winter's buds will appear. It being a costume party and the debbies just doting on that sort of occasion, some fond parents have been won over to permit a first appearance.

MAY 18 18, TO FLEDGING STUDENTS OF THE DRAMA AND playwrighting, an interesting date. On the afternoon of that day will be put forth on the Repertory Theatre Stage three plays written by youthful writers, and done by members of the Dramatic Department of the Club. The set that follows the fortunes of the Repertory Club is immensely interested—such for instance as Mrs. Joseph W. Courtney, Mrs. Cyrus Dallin and others of the allied arts.

MISS GRACE MONKS IS BACK AT THE NORTH SHORE, AFTER a Washington Winter, with ever so many choice prints and first editions to tempt the smart clientele that loves to linger for a leisure hour in her charming "Edgewood" shop. No year passes without Miss Monks journeying across the seas to search out treasure for her shop. Consequently the print and book lover finds much at Edgewood to interest. There's a glimpse of blue ocean from its broad windows, across the rambler roses, and a ship's bell at the broad hospitable door further accents the seashore setting.

CONCERT FOR BENEFIT OF BROOKLINE SCHOOL

A concert for the benefit of the Brookline Music School takes place Wednesday afternoon at the John D. Runkle School in Brookline. Under the direction of Miss Edith E. Wright, principal, and Augustus D. Zanzig, director of music in Brookline, a varied program has been arranged. Mrs. Claudine Leve, soprano, will sing.

Mrs. Leve will be accompanied by Arthur Fiedler, of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. For one group, however, her daughter, Millicent Leve, pupil in the fourth grade of the Runkle School, will play. The balance of the program will be given by different grades of the school.

Partially self-supporting, the Music School has need of assistance from those interested in the full development of service and the benefit concert is a partial answer to this need.

STATE ENGINEER'S BODY FILES LOBBY RETURNS

The Massachusetts State Engineers' Association, Inc., affiliated with the Commonwealth Service Association, big "union" of State employees, today filed its lobby returns with Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook. To John F. Miller, counsel, the association paid $500 for his services in connection with legislation.

What the Early Bird Got

If it's so, they get up early, but they were evidently boys that broke into a Tremont street fruit store shortly after dawn today and rifled the cash drawer of $10. Patrolman Shaw of the Lagrange street station discovered the broken glass in the front door.

TWO COMPANIES CANCEL THEIR GROUP INSURANCE

Springfield, May 2 (A.P.)—The American Bosch Magneto Company has cancelled the group insurance carried for its several hundred employes, it was announced today. This action follows a similar course recently taken by the American Writing Paper Company of Holyoke.

The Bosch insurance has been in effect eight years, both the employes and company contributing to the health, accident and death policies. While business conditions were said to be partly responsible, other reasons, not divulged, were declared more important.

BOSTON & ALBANY RAILROAD

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES

TO BAR GIRLS ON NEXT TRIP OF SEA COLLEGE

Girls will be barred from the next cruise of the "floating university," the liner Ryndam, which with 23 New Englanders and 463 others aboard, arrived today in New York minus 14 students "fired" for causing trouble during the voyage.

Girls are too much trouble to take care of while ashore in foreign climes, explained Professor James E. Lough of New York University, dean of the floating college, who announced the ban on girl students on future world cruises. The cruise lasted eight months. Loaded down with souvenirs and cheering gaily, the boy and girl students raced down the gangplank.

The New Englanders aboard were Miss Gertrude Savage Sand, Boston; James M. Andrews, Brookline; Manley Butler, Dedham; Joseph M. Lowell, Nahant; Miss Allison H. Jackson, Marblehead; Francis S. Hallett, Newton; Miss Margaret Thacher, Rockport; Miss Amy Woods and Mrs. J. W. Elliott, Boston; Dana B. Hinchley, Bangor; Albert Farnham and Charles A. Whitney, Portland; Miss Hilda N. George, Thomaston, Me.; Miss Lenox E. Chase, Amesbury; Charles W. Allen, Concord Junction; Mrs. Merson, Mt. Hermon; Percy DeForest Warner, Nantucket; Lawrence K. Miller, Pittsfield; Noyes M. Fisk, Springfield; Charles A. Rott, Jr., Uxbridge; Dr. and Mrs. John T. Jenkins, Miss Winifred B. Ridgeley and Marcus A. Wells, Worcester.

MISS SULLIVAN BRIDE OF JAMES DOYLE OF ROXBURY

Miss Lillian Sullivan, daughter of Cornelius J. Sullivan of No. 17 Dudley street, North Cambridge, was married today by Rev. Lawrence Glynn in St. John the Evangelist Church, Cambridge, to James Doyle, son of Mrs. Mary Doyle of No. 78 Calumet street, Roxbury.

Miss Gertrude M. Sheehan was bridesmaid and the best man was Edward Doyle, a brother of the bridegroom. Rev. John Lane of Framingham was present within the altar rail. Following the mass, breakfast was served for the immediate families. After three weeks' honeymoon in New York, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Washington the couple will spend the Summer at Nantasket Beach.

Martha Lee Talks To Housewives

How to Cook Bacon

DID you ever stop to think that your nose tastes your food before your tummy? Taste, we are told, is three-quarters smell, so when we talk about food, the chances are we are talking through our nose. And when we think about food, we are probably thinking through our nose.

We eat with our eyes, too. How much more appetizing an attractively prepared meal than one thrown together hit or miss, mostly miss! And if we find a straw or feather clinging to an egg, how confident we feel of its ancestry!

Here, we tell ourselves, is a genuine egg, young, innocent and unworldly. A more widely travelled sophisticated egg would long ago have shaken off the hayseed. We like our eggs to come with birth certificates, too—dated to show their vintage.

When it comes to bacon, our nose knows whether it's bacon that's been smoked over corncobs and sugar cured, and our eye quickly picks out the trademark of the pedigreed variety.

When you buy bacon by brand, you know you will get a sugar cured bacon mild and sweet. It's sold in the strip or sliced in one pound and half-pound cartons.

I broil rather than fry my bacon, and find it far more satisfactory. Preheat the broiling oven of your gas range, arrange the strips of bacon and broil until golden brown without turning, or turning just once.

Can you imagine a more delicious Spring luncheon or Sunday night supper than broiled bacon and tomato-lettuce sandwiches, an ice-cold custard with fresh crushed strawberries, with nut cookies and milk?

The sandwiches are so easy to make. Broil the bacon as directed and keep on a hot platter while you are preparing the rest of the sandwich. Cut white bread 24 hours old into thin, even slices. Butter thinly with butter left in a warm room for an hour or two.

Then lay on one slice a leaf or two of crisp lettuce hearts, two thin slices of the ripe tomatoes, a generous spreading of mayonnaise and crisp bacon slices. Cover with another slice of bread and cut into triangles.

Some people prefer this sandwich made with toast. Adding a slice or two of cold chicken transforms it into a club sandwich made with an extra layer of toast, if you like, between the tomato salad section and the bacon and chicken. Personally, I prefer to serve this as an open sandwich rather than to struggle with a leaning tower of Pisa.

Chop Suey Party

NO doubt you have read the announcement of the Chop Suey Party we are giving in the now and enlarged Martha Lee Kitchen at No. 5 Winthrop Square next Wednesday afternoon, May 4, at 2 p. m. Everybody welcome!

Besides living up to the slogan of our kitchen—"Eat, Drink and Be Merry"—we want you to feel free to prowl around and ask as many questions as you like about our kitkitchen equipment. Especially, the new extra-easy electric washing machine, which is our latest acquisition and of which we are very proud.

Here's a chance for those of you thinking about investing in one of these labor savers this Spring to look our choice of the entire market over carefully, without any danger of being importuned to buy.

Chocolate on Cookies

REMEMBER the way we used to watch mother as she rolled and cut out the cookies? How our mouths watered as the savory odor came from the stove?

Good old days—but how poor mother labored to fill our hungry mouths with those dainties. What would she say could she but see the way in which the mouths of today's youngsters are filled by the big bakeries which turn out the bulk of our commercial supply?

The modern "Thousand Window Bakery" is a revelation. On the top floor are the ovens where the baking is done. Here, too, are the various machines which mix the batter, roll the dough, and quickly and economically cut the little cakes.

No doubt you have tasted those delicious chocolate coated biscuits with the bit of jam for good measure, the inside of creamy marshmallow—a cookie far too difficult to be made at home. These cookies in the old days of manufacture required some 50 hours for making. Here is how the modern bakers do it.

At one end of a long line of machines is a separator which places the cookies in order, right side up, upon a canvas belt, and moves them forward, 12 in line, to the marshmallow depositing machine.

This device deposits upon the lined-up cookies various marshmallow shapes. Just so much marshmallow is dropped and no more. Five hundred cookies per minute may by treated in this fashion. The machine is built to drop the jam and the marshmallow at the same time if such a cookie is desired.

Next chocolate or any other sugar coating is applied and a thin stream of air blows against the coating, rendering each piece absolutely uniform. As the cakes move forward a cocoanut coater spreads them with its burden. This coating, too, is treated with a light stream of air, so that no loose cocoanut remains.

If the covering has been applied free of cocoanut, the cakes once more travel on canvas belts on which has been placed embossed paper. This paper gives to the fresh coating the imprint of the trade name.

Next the cookies pass through what resembles an icebox, where the hot coating is immediately cooled and hardened. When the belt moves out of this refrigerator the produce is ready for the packers.

Immaculately clad girls stand at each side of the belt and pick off quickly the long rows of cookies and deposit them in the waiting containers ready to be shipped to your grocers en route to your pantry.

The super-sanitary conditions under which these cookies are made and the high quality of the materials used are just two of the reasons why the most careful mother need not hesitate to indulge her child's love of these luscious cookie-confections.

Try This Recipe for Quincy Lobster Dish

Now that Nova Scotian lobsters are with us again at a fairly reasonable price, this is a pretty good time to try this Quincy lobster.

One cup thin cream, ½ cup soft bread crumbs, 1½ cups lobster meat, 1 egg, ⅛ teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, few drops onion juice, ½ teaspoon salt, dash cayenne, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup buttered cracker crumbs.

Heat cream almost to boiling point. Add bread crumbs and lobster meat, cut fine. Beat egg slightly and mix mustard with it. Add to the first mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add remaining seasoning and the butter. Put in scallop shells or ramekins, or other buttered dish, cover with buttered crumbs, and bake until crumbs are browned.

Cleaning Up Hints

WHEN I was polishing up Friend Husband's lighter this morning, I thought how many times each week I shake some cleaning magic out of my friendly little green and white can of three-fold polish.

If the waffle iron is dingy, a few drops of cleaner on a damp cloth, a rub and a wipe and presto—it mirrors my satisfied smile. It polishes my mirrors better than anything this side of the equator. In fact, it's good for any glass.

When the can does the disappearance act, I can always locate it in the garage—sure sign that the son and heir is shining up Leaping Lena preparatory to a "heavy date."

This three-fold cleaner can even be used for polishing up the very best Sunday-go-to-meeting silver. Except for the most tarnished pieces, I dilute it one-half with water. Silver cleaning has always been one of my pet abominations, but really my magic bottle does the hardest part of the work for me now.

And every time I invest my quarter in a can, I show Mr. Budget the 50c I've saved, since this three-fold cleaner does away with the necessity of three individual cans—one for metal, one for glass and one for tiling.

It's Time To Dye!

I'M dying to dye, and awfully envious of all you folks who have time to bring your last Summer's wardrobe up to date by the simple investment of a few hours and a few cents in a package or two of reliable dye.

I've a printed silk that ran in a sudden rain, that I know would take a lovely navy, and another sad, drab silk that would take orchid as a duck takes to water. But spare time is one of the many things in the world that I haven't, so the best I can do is to remind you all that it can be done.

The new dyes are so lovely—no relation to the maddening, old fashioned kind that produced magenta lamp shades and dead dingy blue tones that stamped an attempt at resurrection as a relic of past decency.

Today's dyes are as dainty as the soft shades of a delicate rainbow and as steadfast as faith—the faith you'll wisely pin in the clear directions you'll find on every package.

Spring Tints

(Copyright 1927)

Gaily colored frocks this Spring! Underthings in soft shades to match. Tint them in ordinary water—but with true dyes. Dipping will do it—in ordinary cold water—but you must have real dye to get a smooth, perfectly even tone.

Diamond dye powder is fifteen cents at any drugstore; so why do half a job with something not half so effective? And when you want the tint to be permanent, just dip in boiling water instead of cold!

The druggist has color cards and simple directions for doing perfect dyeing of all sorts of material; silk or wool; linen, cotton goods; mixed goods, or any goods at all; and exquisite tinting of dainty things. Or, send for a marvelous book of suggestions in full colors. Ask for Color Craft! Address DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N31, Burlington, Vermont.

"My husband called it the best meal I ever cooked!"

"ONE day I heard of putting Gulden's in my cooking. I tried it in beef loaf, and mixed it in before I served my spinach. The results were delicious—something new in flavoring. My husband said it was the best dinner I'd ever cooked."

Thousands of housewives know this new, simple way of seasoning. It is the method used by chefs in the large hotels, where foods must have a deft, delicate taste. Just a few golden drops of Gulden's mixed in when you cook vegetables, spread over meats before they are roasted or broiled, and you will be astonished at the rich, delicious flavor your foods will have.

Gulden's is a blending of the world's finest mustard seeds with delightful spices. Only in Gulden's do you get this perfect combination of rich, mellow spices with the lively little mustard seed. This is why it's the one complete seasoner for cooking—tasty, not harsh or biting. It comes to you, all ready to use.

KILLS WIFE OF ANOTHER AND GETS 30 YEARS

Providence, May 2 (I.N.S.).—John K. Miga, 32, slayer of Mrs. Mary Stec of Pawtucket, pleaded guilty to second degree murder in today and was sentenced to 30 years in State Prison.

Miga killed Mrs. Stec, wife of Michael Stec, proprietor of the Argyle House, in Pawtucket, on March 28. He claimed to have been her suitor, before and after her marriage, and that he shot her when she told him she no longer cared for him.

He Wishes His Mother "Wouldn't Ever"

"I just love Bond Bread, mama," says Norman—the boy with the Bond Bread smile, son of Mrs. N. L. Darling of Everett. "I wish you wouldn't ever get any other kind." "They all like Bond," writes Mrs. Darling, "and we like them to eat it because it's wholesome."

Just 8 years ago, 6405 Boston housewives brought samples of their home-baked bread to Tremont Temple to show us the kind of bread they wanted for themselves and their children. Being frankly copied from the best of these 6405 loaves, Bond Bread quickly became Boston's most popular bread.

Why is it that after 8 years of unparalleled popularity, Bond Bread now enjoys an even greater demand than ever before in its history?

Because day after day for 8 long years, Bond Bread has been uniformly home-like. Its splendid flavor comes from its pure ingredients—ingredients every bit as pure and choice as you yourself would use. Its healthfulness comes largely from its thorough baking. This thorough baking is what makes it so firm and close-textured, as well as so flavorful.

Every day more and more housewives realize it pays to discriminate in bread. They have tried them all and have convinced themselves that a home-like, healthful bread, like Bond, is the greatest bargain a woman can buy.

PASTOR, GIRL BAYONETED BY CHINESE

Hong Kong, China, May 2 (A.P.).—The Rev. Morris Slichter, the China inland mission worker who was murdered near Yunnanfu with his eight-year-old daughter, was bayoneted after being thrown to the ground with his child in his arms, according to mail advices reaching here from Yunnanfu today.

The party was made up, besides the Rev. Mr. Slichter and his daughter, of his wife, her five-year-old son, Miss Mary Craig and a Catholic missionary. Mrs. Slichter, the boy and Miss Craig were made prisoners, but the American woman was released later.

The mail advices say that the inland mission group left Shihtsung for Yunnanfu with an escort of 110 soldiers, but that when only a short distance from Shihtsung, about 250 men attacked the party and the escort fled. The missionaries were surrounded and shot at, the Rev. Mr. Slichter being wounded.

Then one of the attacking party knocked him down with a rifle, and as he was lying on the ground with his daughter in his arms, he was killed by a bayonet thrust. The girl was killed in a similar manner.

Mrs. Slichter was stabbed in the breast several times. The Catholic priest was shot at, but was not hit. He escaped behind a wall, later running into the hills, where he waited for two days trying to learn the fate of his companions.

U. S. and British Ships Fired Upon by Chinese

Shanghai, May 2 (A.P.).—A Chinese fort near Chinkiang, on the Yangtse, fired on the British gunboat Teal and the naval auxiliary Kiawo yesterday. The British vessels let loose their guns, silencing the fort. There were no casualties on the warships and no serious damage was done.

Reports reaching Shanghai today indicated that the Japanese have evacuated all places in the Yangtse valley above Hankow.

The American passenger and freight steamer President Lincoln was fired on with rifles from the native city of Shanghai, while bound from the harbor for the sea. There were no casualties.

ANNOUNCES DAUGHTER'S ENGAGEMENT TO MARCONI

Rome, May 2 (I.N.S.).—Count Bezzicall today announced the engagement of his daughter, Christine, to Guglielmo Marconi, famous wireless inventor and scientist. The marriage is expected to take place in the middle of June.

Signor Marconi's first marriage to the Honorable Beatrice O'Brien, daughter of the fourteenth Baron Inchiquin, was recently dissolved by the Sacred Rota of the Catholic church.

HANKOW'S FATE IN DOUBT; 2 ARMIES NEAR

Shanghai, May 2 (I.N.S.).—The fate of the extremist Nationalist government in Hankow hangs in the balance today. While Marshal Chang Tso Lin's armies march toward Hankow from the north reports Chiang Kai Shek's moderate Nationalist forces are advancing up the Yangtze with Hankow as their goal.

The U. S. transport Henderson, carrying 1,500 marines, is due is Shanghai today.

WELL BATTERED BUT HE LANDS 3 IN COURT

If Policeman Philip Whaland had gone to the home of the Carrozzas equipped with two clubs and two guns, he might now have one club and one gun and no stitches, no black eye and two more teeth, it was indicated in East Boston Court today.

The feature of the day in court was the arraignment of David I. Carrozza and his two sons, Meco and John, as the result of a battle that took place in the Carrozza home in Summer street, East Boston.

Not quite the start, however, because Policeman Whaland went to the house on complaint of Miss Margaret Engelson, maid in a Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay, home, that she had been attached by Meco.

The policeman placed Meco under arrest and then, according to testimony, the battle started, with the father and his other son attempting to rescue Meco.

Whaland then clamped onto John, which was just as fruitless, temporarily, Meco and Daddy turning their vigorous attentions toward rescuing John.

The score:

Policeman Whaland in court with his head in bandages, six stitches under the cloth, one black eye, two teeth missing, no club and no gun.

Meco, bailed in $1,000 on charges of assault and battery on the girl and on the policeman.

SHIPPERS' ADVISORY BOARD TO MEET

The sixth regular and second annual meeting of the New England Shippers' Advisory Board is scheduled at the Hotel Carpenter, Manchester, N. H., June 10, following various committee meetings which will be held in the same place on the day previous.

W. F. Garcelon, general chairman of the New England Board, will preside.

One of the avowed purposes of the Shippers' Advisory Boards, which have been formed in the various sections of the country, is to give the shipping public a direct voice in the activities of the car service division of the American Railway Association in all matters of mutual concern.

ENGLISH GIRLS WEAR TROUSERS AT SEASIDE

London, May 2 (A.P.).—Miss 1927 of England has taken to trousers for sports and seaside wear.

During the Easter vacation trousers for girls were a feature of the resorts around the coast, and with their closely cropped hair brushed back and wearing sweater sports jackets and semi-Oxford "bags" it was difficult to distinguish the girls from the boys.

On the tennis courts the girls wore white flannels and the "orthodox man's shirt," so that "mixed" doubles seemed to be played by four boys.

Economy!-Tintex tints faded "step-ins" new

.... THE loveliness of your step-ins—and indeed of all your "undies"—is largely in their dainty color. But frequent launderings fade this colorful beauty—and here is where Tintex brings real economy.

.... for with Tintex it takes but a minute or two to restore their original color and make them just-like-new. And how easily done—just sprinkle Tintex in a basin of water (hot or cold) and "tint as you rinse."

.... for lace-trimmed silks, there are special Tintex Tints in the Blue Box. They tint the silk and leave the lace white. Use the Tintex fast, lustrous dark colors, too—for dyeing heavier apparel and materials. Choose all the colors you need from the Tintex Color Card!

No Ashes - No Dust - No Soot

Little need be added to the enthusiastic statements made by those people in Boston who are already enjoying

AUTOMATIC GAS HEATING

They don't need to think about their furnaces from the time they are lighted in the Fall until they turn off the Gas in the Spring. Their basements are clean—dustless, sootless, ashless—usable for cleanly purposes—an extra room which may be decorated and furnished or equipped for work or play.

In contrast to this, look at your own cellar. Then imagine what it could be if the fuel bin, ash cans, tools and other paraphernalia of furnace tending were banished forever. Think what it would mean to dispense with the tracking or sifting of dust, soot and ashes from the cellar to the floors above: to have your "fuel bin" always full.

Ask any woman whose home is Gas Heated. She'll tell you that the saving in cleaning time and labor is a big item; that she'd as soon go back to the old cook-stove as the old-time furnace.

Now there are home sizes in Gas Furnaces. Your heating installation is planned according to your comfort needs. In addition, the modern Gas Furnace automatically regulates the temperature of your rooms. During cold snaps the flow of gas increases. When the weather moderates the gas flow diminishes.

Investigate Automatic Gas Heating if only to keep posted on the latest developments in the heating of homes and buildings. A heating expert will be sent to your home to tell you the facts about Gas Fuel and Gas Furnaces — to plan and estimate the installation of a Gas Furnace in conjunction with your present heating equipment.

There is no obligation involved for you. Simply write or telephone one of our neighborhood offices.

Smoke has much to answer for SMOKE is an active enemy as well as an ugly nuisance. Smoke injures property by discoloring surfaces, disintegrating mortar and corroding metal. Smoke menaces health because smoke-polluted air irritates the membranes and makes the throat and lungs susceptible to disease.

How can these smoke evils be overcome? The obvious answer is: Use a fuel which produces no smoke.

How to Cook Bacon

DID you ever stop to think that your nose tastes your food before your tummy? Taste, we are told, is three-quarters smell, so when we talk about food, the chances are we are talking through our nose. And when we think about food, we are probably thinking through our nose.

We eat with our eyes, too. How much more appetizing an attractively prepared meal than one thrown together hit or miss, mostly miss! And if we find a straw or feather clinging to an egg, how confident we feel of its ancestry!

Here, we tell ourselves, is a genuine egg, young, innocent and unworldly. A more widely travelled sophisticated egg would long ago have shaken off the hayseed. We like our eggs to come with birth certificates, too—dated to show their vintage.

When it comes to bacon, our nose knows whether it's bacon that's been smoked over corncobs and sugar cured, and our eye quickly picks out the trademark of the pedigreed variety.

When you buy bacon by brand, you know you will get a sugar cured bacon mild and sweet. It's sold in the strip or sliced in one pound and half-pound cartons.

I broil rather than fry my bacon, and find it far more satisfactory. Preheat the broiling oven of your gas range, arrange the strips of bacon and broil until golden brown without turning, or turning just once.

Can you imagine a more delicious Spring luncheon or Sunday night supper than broiled bacon and tomato-lettuce sandwiches, an ice-cold custard with fresh crushed strawberries, with nut cookies and milk?

The sandwiches are so easy to make. Broil the bacon as directed and keep on a hot platter while you are preparing the rest of the sandwich. Cut white bread 24 hours old into thin, even slices. Butter thinly with butter left in a warm room for an hour or two.

Then lay on one slice a leaf or two of crisp lettuce hearts, two thin slices of the ripe tomatoes, a generous spreading of mayonnaise and crisp bacon slices. Cover with another slice of bread and cut into triangles.

Some people prefer this sandwich made with toast. Adding a slice or two of cold chicken transforms it into a club sandwich made with an extra layer of toast, if you like, between the tomato salad section and the bacon and chicken. Personally, I prefer to serve this as an open sandwich rather than to struggle with a leaning tower of Pisa.

Spring Tints

(Copyright 1927)

Gaily colored frocks this Spring! Underthings in soft shades to match. Tint them in ordinary water—but with true dyes. Dipping will do it—in ordinary cold water—but you must have real dye to get a smooth, perfectly even tone.

Diamond dye powder is fifteen cents at any drugstore; so why do half a job with something not half so effective? And when you want the tint to be permanent, just dip in boiling water instead of cold!

The druggist has color cards and simple directions for doing perfect dyeing of all sorts of material; silk or wool; linen, cotton goods; mixed goods, or any goods at all; and exquisite tinting of dainty things. Or, send for a marvelous book of suggestions in full colors. Ask for Color Craft! Address DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N31, Burlington, Vermont.

Chop Suey Party

NO doubt you have read the announcement of the Chop Suey Party we are giving in the new and enlarged Martha Lee Kitchen at No. 5 Winthrop Square next Wednesday afternoon, May 4, at 2 p. m. Everybody welcome!

Besides living up to the slogan of our kitchen—"Eat, Drink and Be Merry"—we want you to feel free to prowl around and ask as many questions as you like about our kitkitchen equipment. Especially, the new extra-easy electric washing machine, which is our latest acquisition and of which we are very proud.

Here's a chance for those of you thinking about investing in one of these labor savers this Spring to look our choice of the entire market over carefully, without any danger of being importuned to buy.

Chocolate on Cookies

REMEMBER the way we used to watch mother as she rolled and cut out the cookies? How our mouths watered as the savory odor came from the stove?

Good old days—but how poor mother labored to fill our hungry mouths with those dainties. What would she say could she but see the way in which the mouths of today's youngsters are filled by the big bakeries which turn out the bulk of our commercial supply?

The modern "Thousand Window Bakery" is a revelation. On the top floor are the ovens where the baking is done. Here, too, are the various machines which mix the batter, roll the dough, and quickly and economically cut the little cakes.

No doubt you have tasted those delicious chocolate coated biscuits with the bit of jam for good measure, the inside of creamy marshmallow—a cookie far too difficult to be made at home. These cookies in the old days of manufacture required some 50 hours for making. Here is how the modern bakers do it.

At one end of a long line of machines is a separator which places the cookies in order, right side up, upon a canvas belt, and moves them forward, 12 in line, to the marshmallow depositing machine.

This device deposits upon the lined-up cookies various marshmallow shapes. Just so much marshmallow is dropped and no more. Five hundred cookies per minute may by treated in this fashion. The machine is built to drop the jam and the marshmallow at the same time if such a cookie is desired.

Next chocolate or any other sugar coating is applied and a thin stream of air blows against the coating, rendering each piece absolutely uniform. As the cakes move forward a cocoanut coater spreads them with its burden. This coating, too, is treated with a light stream of air, so that no loose cocoanut remains.

If the covering has been applied free of cocoanut, the cakes once more travel on canvas belts on which has been placed embossed paper. This paper gives to the fresh coating the imprint of the trade name.

Next the cookies pass through what resembles an icebox, where the hot coating is immediately cooled and hardened. When the belt moves out of this refrigerator the produce is ready for the packers.

Immaculately clad girls stand at each side of the belt and pick off quickly the long rows of cookies and deposit them in the waiting containers ready to be shipped to your grocers en route to your pantry.

The super-sanitary conditions under which these cookies are made and the high quality of the materials used are just two of the reasons why the most careful mother need not hesitate to indulge her child's love of these luscious cookie-confections.

Try This Recipe for Quincy Lobster Dish

Now that Nova Scotian lobsters are with us again at a fairly reasonable price, this is a pretty good time to try this Quincy lobster.

One cup thin cream, ½ cup soft bread crumbs, 1¼ cups lobster meat, 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, few drops onion juice, ½ teaspoon salt, dash cayenne, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup buttered cracker crumbs.

Heat cream almost to boiling point. Add bread crumbs and lobster meat, cut fine. Beat egg slightly and mix mustard with it. Add to the first mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add remaining seasoning and the butter. Put in scallop shells or ramekins, or other buttered dish, cover with buttered crumbs, and bake until crumbs are browned.

Cleaning Up Hints

WHEN I was polishing up Friend Husband's lighter this morning, I thought how many times each week I shake some cleaning magic out of my friendly little green and white can of three-fold polish.

If the waffle iron is dingy, a few drops of cleaner on a damp cloth, a rub and a wipe and presto—it mirrors my satisfied smile. It polishes my mirrors better than anything this side of the equator. In fact, it's good for any glass.

When the can does the disappearance act, I can always locate it in the garage—sure sign that the son and heir is shining up Leaping Lena preparatory to a "heavy date."

This three-fold cleaner can even be used for polishing up the very best Sunday-go-to-meeting silver. Except for the most tarnished pieces, I dilute it one-half with water. Silver cleaning has always been one of my pet abominations, but really my magic bottle does the hardest part of the work for me now.

And every time I invest my quarter in a can, I show Mr. Budget the 50c I've saved, since this three-fold cleaner does away with the necessity of three individual cans—one for metal, one for glass and one for tiling.

It's Time To Dye!

I'M dying to dye, and awfully envious of all you folks who have time to bring your last Summer's wardrobe up to date by the simple investment of a few hours and a few cents in a package or two of reliable dye.

I've a printed silk that ran in a sudden rain, that I know would take a lovely navy, and another sad, drab silk that would take orchid as a duck takes to water. But spare time is one of the many things in the world that I haven't, so the best I can do is to remind you all that it can be done.

The new dyes are so lovely—no relation to the maddening, old fashioned kind that produced magenta lamp shades and dead dingy blue tones that stamped an attempt at resurrection as a relic of past decency.

Today's dyes are as dainty as the soft shades of a delicate rainbow and as steadfast as faith—the faith you'll wisely pin in the clear directions you'll find on every package.

How can anyone keep up with the times if he doesn't read the advertisements?

It is often said that the advertisements offer a liberal education. The new electrical appliances that take the drudgery out of housework first saw the light of day in the advertising columns. A vegetable substitute for silk is discovered, and you hear about it first through an advertisement.

What are the new models in motor-cars? The advertisements tell you, before you go to the auto show. What's the best show in town? What's the newest in hats and shoes and golf-togs? Consult the advertisements. That's the way to keep up with the times. That's the way to make the family budget go farther.

GIRLISH BUMPS GIVING HOUSE THE MUMPS!

Pity the Rappollis! They have no peace and comfort in their home while motorists (feminine) roam abroad and bump their house. Now their front steps and their pet collie dog are gone.

And so today, Enzo Rappolli, husband and father—also a contractor—nailed on his home in Cedar street Somerville, this sign:

"Please, Mrs. Automobilist, bump into some other house for a change, because it has been bumped into twice in the last 66 days. Safety First."

It was only last Saturday night that the collie, "Polly," was killed in front of the house, just a few seconds before the motorist swept away the front step—and the collie was the pet of the three children.

Mr. and Mrs. Rappolli make their home on the first floor of the three-flat house with the children, Gino, twelve, Gilda eleven, and Lena, nine.

The family were roused from slumber by the latest crash. Rappolli got out of bed and called to the occupants of the machine, but they continued on their way.

The house is located almost opposite Clyde street and police believe the machine came out of Clyde turning into Cedar crossed the street and crashed into the steps.

Cedar street is heavily traveled by automobilists.

A Startling Serial Story of Love, Terror and the Night Clubs

Jacqueline Kay, nineteen and attractive, comes to Boston from Houlton, Me., and obtains an engagement as singer at the Sea Shell, a cabaret. The proprietor, Julius Lupino, takes more than a friendly interest in her. She meets Tom Ware, who is informed by Lupino that Jacqueline is under Lupino's personal care. Lupino accompanies her home. She is accosted by a man whom Lupino kills. The offender is a notorious criminal. Lupino is arrested and admits the killing. He announces his love for Jacqueline. Jacqueline leaves the Sea Shell, but is persuaded to return by Abe Gordon, Lupino's lawyer. She does so, and Lupino is released on bail. Ware declares his love for Jacqueline and asks her to marry him. Lupino reveals his knowledge of Jacqueline's affairs and she realizes that he is having her followed. Lupino asks Jacqueline to marry him, and when she refuses, he tells her that if he can't have her, no one else ever will. May, one of the chorus girls, also warns Jacqueline against Lupino and "The Spook," his henchman. Jacqueline suddenly determines to quit the Sea Shell, and Lupino, immediately. She starts home, first trying vainly to get Tom Ware on the telephone.

On leaving the telephone booth, Jacqueline finds Lupino waiting for her. They are surrounded by three dangerous looking men who force them at the point of guns to enter a limousine. Jacqueline finds one of the men to be a brother of the man Lupino had killed.

Jacqueline and Lupino are driven to an unoccupied building. They find a vault which the men order Lupino to open. It is his private safe.

Chapter 24.

The car glided along without haste; anyone observing it from the street could not possibly have imagined the tense drama transpiring inside.

The gangster sitting beside the bereaved Red Suggs cackled with rasping amusement.

"That's a hot wrinkle—he's got his girl wit' him! He ain't gonna be lonesome a-tall! He's gonna have company—all the way."

A shuddering surge of panic began to jerk through Jacqueline's nerves . . . threatened to wrack her to pieces. Far back in her mind however, remained a cool, reasoning spot, and she commanded herself by a desperate effort of will power to keep from screaming. At all costs she must hang on to her wits . . .

"We might of known Lupino'd have a woman with him wherever we picked him up," Red grumbled "but it don't make no difference, I guess."

Jacqueline could hear Lupino's heavy breathing beside her.

"You'll burn for this, Red—the whole mob'll go to the chair," he said tensely. "Somebody's sure to grab the number of this car. You can't get away with it."

"You tellin' me somethin', ain't you," Red sneered. "You're the big wise guy! Listen. If I wanted to knock you off I wouldn't go about it this way. I got a better idea than that, Lupino. If I gave you the works it'd hurt about a second and then you'd be out of your misery. That wouldn't get me nothin', or poor Barney either. I got a better idea."

"I'll say he has," chortled Red's companion. "He's gonna hit you where you live!"

"Naw, I ain't gonna knock you off, Lupino—lessen I have to," Red told him contemptuously. "I'm goin

The Red Signal ~ In Suspense ~ By Homer Banks

MANTON'S MURDER CREATES SENSATION—The murder of Samuel Manton created a sensation. The first word of the tragedy sent a horde of reporters and cameramen scurrying to police headquarters. Rosalind, wild-eyed with fear and supported by Roger, entered the district attorney's office to face his lash of questions.

ROSALIND FACES THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY—Forsythe confronted Roger first. "You are an attorney?" he asked. Hope nodded. The district attorney turned to a detective. "I'll question the girl alone," he announced. Roger was led away to an adjoining room. For two hours Rosalind, half fainting, went through the barrage of cross examination. Guests at Manton's apartment were called in to corroborate parts of her testimony. Once she almost fell from her chair. At the end of the grilling Roger was called in. Rosalind flew to his arms.

"That's all!" rasped Forsythe curtly, turning to an assistant. "We'll have her held in $10,000 bail as a material witness." He nodded to Roger. "You're next, young man." Detectives led her [illegible] young Hope, his face twisted in pain and worriment, sat down in the chair the district attorney indicated. Forsythe was plainly puzzled over Roger's possible connection with the crime. Step by step he went over the events preceding the murder.

Copyright, 1927, King Features Synd., Inc.

ROGER PUZZLES FORSYTHE—At the end of the interrogation he paused, calling to Sergeant Gallagher to step out of the room with him. There was a hurried whispered conference. The district attorney re-entered the room, puzzled. Then he said: "I'm not satisfied with you yet, Hope. I'll release you, but I want to see you here tomorrow!"

STAGE ~ SCREEN ~ MUSIC

DEFT FARCE WINS CROWD AT 'MET'

Florence Vidor

Another of those choice Franco-Hollywood slices of life is the new film at the Metropolitan, 'Afraid to Love,' with Florence Vidor and Clive Brook doing the honors. It is a breezy little af[illegible] spirit and the subtle niceties of the best in light comedy purr along contentedly through its six or seven reels. E. H. Griffith, a veteran in filmcraft, is credited with the direction and a neat job he makes of it, too.

The script has been culled from a play called "The Marriage of Kitty," which mildly involves such interesting features as chess, clothes, money, marriage and black mustachioed gentlemen.

The sartorial creations are displayed by Miss Vidor and Jocelyn Lee who, in the story, are bitter rivals. But as Miss Vidor is cast as the heroine [illegible] confident that the director is not going to allow Sir Reginald So-and-So (Clive Brook) marry the other girl, even though that is Sir Reggie's intention during the earlier moments of the this amusing sketch.

Confronted with a dilemma and the necessity of having to marry at once to gain his inheritance, the pleasantly stupid Reggie selects a wife at random. To make sure that he gets the money his would-be divorcee friend to whom he is engaged (pending her decree), consents to the arrangement as long as the hastily acquired wife seems to be "plain." But the catch comes when Lady Reggie blossoms out in her true colors—as a pictorial sensation.

The elimination of the "other woman" and the stimulation of Sir Reginald's ardor occupy the remaining footage in highly entertaining fashion.

On the "Met" stage the genial Mr. Rodemich and his Merry Makers launch forth into a new program that rivals their former efforts in jazz. Ball and La Marr, who sing and dance, are their new assistants this week. The presentation is "The Sampler," staged by John Murray Anderson, featuring Olive Hutchinson, the singer, and occasioning many old-fashioned humors in its course.

Rescues Boy

Sliding down the drop pole from the "bridge" of the Metropolitan Police Station at Riverside, and rowing the emergency life boat across the Charles River, Officer Guy R. Sanderson rescued a 15-year-old boy from drowning after his canoe had tipped over.

Conway Tearle and Margaret Morris put little Frankie Darrow to bed in "Moulders of Men," the new Elks film now showing at the Fenway and the Scollay.

200 PETITION PASTOR TO STAY

Fitchburg, May 2.—A petition bearing the names of 200 members of the congregation of the Calvinistic Congregational Church will be presented to the church board tonight asking that the Rev. Leonard S. Nightwine be retained as pastor of the church.

Two weeks ago the church board asked for the resignation of the Rev. Mr. Nightwine and this was presented to the congregation a week ago.

The minister's activities in opposing Sunday moving picture shows in Fitchburg recently brought much publicity to the church and this caused considerable dissention in the congregation, which culminated in the [illegible] asking for the resignation of the pastor.

Since the resignation was presented the friends of Rev. Mr. Nightwine [illegible] and the petition [illegible] presented to the board tonight is the result.

SISTERS ARE BRIDES AT LEOMINSTER CHURCH

Leominster, May 2.—Two sisters [illegible] today in a double wedding ceremony in Saint Cecelia's church. The brides were Victoria Lamoureu aged 18 and Julia Lamoureu aged 20, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lamoureu, prominent residents of Leominster.

The younger sister became the wife of Walter Tedd while the elder was wed to Morris Burt.

UNITED FRUIT IN PACIFIC

New York, May 2 (A.P.)—Reports that the United Fruit Company planned to extend its shipping service to the Pacific Coast were confirmed today by Michael C. O'Hearn, manager of the company's New York division.

Mr. O'Hearn said that Louis M. D[illegible], general manager, and Captain Arthur J. Dunning, marine superintendent, were completing an exhaustive survey into port conditions at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Tacom with the view of selecting one of the cities for the terminus of one of its Central American services.

EXHIBITS AT DENTAL HYGIENISTS' MEETING

The Massachusetts Association of Dental Hygienists opened a convention at the Hotel Statler today. It will continue until Friday.

The exhibits of the association will include "Available Dental Educational Material," arranged by Florence Martin of Boston and "A Prenatal and Pre-school Dental Hygiene Exhibit" from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, with Miss Eleanor B. Gallinger in charge.

There will be chair clinics in charge of Gertrude Sumner of Canton, Vivien B. Sherman of Boston, Margaret Richmond of Dedham and Dorothy B. Milliken of New Bedford.

MELODRAMA ON OLYMPIA SCREEN

Pictorially and melodramatically, the new film at the Washington Street Olympia is eminently satisfactory, but many of its turns may be taken with a grain of salt—quite a generous sprinkling if you are particular. It is frankly "melodrama" all the way through and if, at times, it seems extravagant put it down to the director's zeal to furnish excitement.

Ann Rock

The film is an adaptation of Sir Patrick Hastings's novel and play, "The River" and the background is chiefly South Africa among the diamond hunters.

Although the production was made in Hollywood, it manages to convey a fairly adequate atmosphere of the veldt according to the general idea given in the books of adventure.

There are some admirable scenes and the characters, in most cases, look as if they belonged to the jungle locale. Barbara Bedford is the exception, for she is too sartorially perfect to gibe with the rought country which surrounds her.

Ann Rork plays convincingly the role of a half-caste girl, and Lewis Stone, as is the case in all his films, gives by far the best performance.

The story is a none too well knit affair, that concerns a gentleman who goes into the jungle "to forget" the suspected faithlessness of his wife. Just why this move is necessary is hardly clear, but this is a movie, and that would seem to account for it.

POPS OPEN TONIGHT AT SYMPHONY HALL

The forty-second season of Pop Concerts will open tonight in gala fashion, in Symphony Hall. Interest centers in Alfredo Casella, the distinguished Italian conductor and composer, and in his debut as the leader of the Pops tonight.

In his opening program, Casella's arrangement of two marches of Schubert will have their first Boston performance. His Rhapsody Italia will at last be heard at these concerts under the baton of the composer, and the dances from Verdi's "Othello" will have their first performance hereabouts.

Tonight's program is:

Prelude to "Carmen"	Bizet
Two Marches	Schubert
"Fountains of Rome," Symphonic Poem	Respighi
Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg"	Wagner
Overture to "Cinderella"	Rossini
Three Dances from "Othello"	Verdi
"Italia," Rhapsody	Casella
Indian War Dance	Skilton
Valse Triste	Sibelius
Caprice on Spanish Themes	Rimsky-Korsakov

ELKS FILM IS GRIPPING DRAMA

The benevolent and protective qualities of the Elks are arrestingly and entertainingly shown in a picture called "Moulders of Men" which is now showing on the screens of the Scollay and the Fenway. Its story was written by John Chapman Hilder, managing editor of the Elks Magazine, and the attraction is presented by Boston's own film magnate, Joseph P. Kennedy, president of F. B. O.

The film contains a worthy uplift purpose and at the same time the value of stirring entertainment is not forgotten. An experienced and capable cast headed by Conway Tearle, Margaret Morris and the child actor, Frankie Darrow, skillfully interpret the action.

Tearle appears as a doctor and Elk who tries to rid his city of some dangerous gangsters. In the course of this heroic work he finds a crippled boy on his hands, the little brother of one of the gunmen.

Aiding the public-spirited physician is an alert young newspaper woman, played by Margaret Morris. The little cripple in the play is impersonated by the bright Darrow tot. Matching these three popular players is Rex Lease, a youth seen as the daring gunman.

The screen drama is exciting all the way through. Director Ince has provided one sequence that is particularly gripping. It pictures a race through the dark between cars driven by outlaws and Federal agents.

The balance of the bill at the Scollay is made up of vaudeville and the other film at the Fenway is "Fashions for Women," with Esther Ralston as the star.

FEAR CLAM DIGGERS ARE SHARKS' VICTIMS

Salinas, Cal., May 2 (A.P.)—John A. Andrade, 20, and Alfred Oliver, 16, both of Warm Springs, Cal., who disappeared while digging clams in the shark-infested surf four miles north of Moss Landing Saturday, may have been victims of the man-eaters.

Clothes left by the missing pair were found on the beach, and their clamming rakes were recovered in the surf.

The beach is so infested with man-eating sharks that bathers familiar with the waters never venture into the surf.

"ROSE DAY" SATURDAY TO AID MEN IN SERVICE

The annual "Rose Day" will be held on Saturday, May 14, when an army of volunteer workers will sell red roses on the streets of Boston. The total proceeds will go to the Army and Navy Service Committee for the benefit of its work for men in the United States service at the Soldiers and Sailors' Club and for those in hospitals.

Dainty Yvette

JEANETTE McDONALD

ON PAROLE, NOW HEADED BACK

Elmer Spinelli, who was turned away from the doors of the State prison a little while ago, was turned back toward them again today.

Police arrested him at his Hichborn street, Revere, home and charged him with the Saturday night burglary at the home of David Levine in North Shore road, Revere.

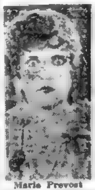
Nearly $1,500 worth of loot was taken, according to Levine, and the police, remembering that Spinelli was on parole from the State prison, where he was serving a burglary sentence, visited his rooms early today and claim to have found some of the loot. Spinelli was arrested.

ARKANSAS MOB SEEKING TO LYNCH YOUTH FOILED

Little Rock, Ark., May 2 (A.P.)—Thwarted by police vigilance, a mob of 100 men in automobiles today continued their search of jails for a 16-year-old negro boy who confessed to the murder of a 12-year-old white girl here. The mob had dwindled rapidly away from an estimated crowd of 5,000 which last night stormed the State penitentiary and several jails in Central Arkansas. In the meantime, Lonnie Dixon, the boy, was being concealed by officials who had earlier asked for aid of the Arkansas national guard, but who were unable to obtain this aid because the guardsmen were needed in the flood areas.

FILM FARCE IS HILARIOUS AT BOSTON

"Getting Gertie's Garter," an Avery Hapwood stage farce that successfully capitalized curiosity with the bedroom comedy vogue of a few seasons ago, has gone the regular way of the drama and landed in the films. It is now on view at the Keith-Albee Boston with Marie Prevost in the title role and Charles Ray as the boy who does the "getting."



Marie Prevost

You would hardly think Gertie the kind of girl who would bother wearing such things, but in her case the ordinary utilitarian purpose of the garter is secondary to a means of transportation for a photograph of a cast-off suitor. When the lady becomes engaged to somebody else, the boy who has lost out must needs take frantic means to recover the incriminating "evidence."

It is all very hilarious and the audience has a good time. The players are skilled farceurs and, together with the capable direction of E. Mason Hopper and the extra advantage the films have over the stage, the picture is a far more worth while entertainment than the original ever was before the footlights.

Other capable comedians in the cast are Harry Myers and Franklin Pangborn. The latter is comparatively new to the camera, having lately been recruited from stock.

Shorter film subjects and an entertaining bill of vaudeville complete the program.

HOSTESS POURED OIL ON HIS FACE, MAN CHARGES

Charles Jackson, negro, was all lit up two ways, following a little celebration at Phillips' Court, West End, which ended at the Haymarket Relief Station.

Jackson said he had been visiting friends there, and when he left, he was invited into the apartment below by Mrs. Dolly Reece. After a few drinks, he said, Dolly Reece poured kerosene on his face and touched a match to his countenance.

Jackson is at the Relief Station today suffering from his burns while Dolly is also held there, a victim of alcoholism.

MILNE COMEDY ON SCREEN AT MODERN

As a concession to the American film public, the pictured version of A. A. Milne's deft English comedy, "The Dover Road" emerges on the screens of the Modern and Beacon as "The Little Adventuress." But no matter, William De Mille is one of the best directors in the game, and you may safely leave it to him to retain as much as possible of the smart satire that Milne wove into this sly joshing of hasty elopement.

Vera Reynolds

The central figure of this amusing play is a philosophical and benevolently inclined buttinsky who gets a lot of fun waylaying runaway couples and so "framing" them that they very soon see how ridiculous their position is and mend their ways.

As all those who flee London en route to France have to take "The Dover Road," this amazing gentleman has plenty of opportunity to indulge his hobby by maintaining a residence on this famed highway and, by the simple expedient of digging a rut in the road that will break an automobile spring, the eloping intenders are easily lured to his home and he has them at his mercy.

Victor Varconi assumes the role of this humanely inclined individual, Vera Reynolds is a [illegible] heroine, and [illegible] and Theodore Kosloff are the pair who decide that romantic elopements are much better when read in novels.

To Show Film

A screen showing of the life of Martin Luther is scheduled in Tremont Temple tomorrow. It is sponsored by the Italian Interdenominational Ministerial Association of Greater Boston. The Rev. A. Felond, Lawrence, chairman of the committee, will be assisted by the Rev. F. T. [illegible], Hyde Park, and the Rev. Joseph [illegible], Boston.

There is a great difference between a biting crab and a huge soft jellyfish that breaks as you lift it. China is the jellyfish.

THERE IS NOTHING to worry about as regards the city of New Orleans. Danger, loss and suffering are all in the low lying flooded districts. A telegram from New Orleans states on highest authority:

"No break threatened at New Orleans. No river water in the city and won't be any. Poydras levee, ten miles below the city, has been opened, and river is rapidly widening the breach, which, in two days, should be five or six thousand feet wide, with three hundred thousand cubic feet of water per second finding its way to the gulf through it.

"This relief to the river will take care of the crest of the flood now on its way south. River at New Orleans now stands at lower gauge than in 1922."

THAT STATEMENT, sent by Walter Parker, on the authority of J. P. Kemper, consulting engineer of the National Flood Prevention Commission, is entirely reassuring as regards the permanent safety of New Orleans.

IT IS DISTRESSING to read of three hundred thousand cubic feet of water not only going to waste every second, but flooding farms, destroying houses, ruining thousands of families.

This government should not rest until the Mississippi flood problem is settled permanently, the great river made into a deep waterway from the Great Lakes and their cities to the gulf, and the precious waters and alluvial soil controlled and preserved to enrich this country.

LONDON'S ANTI-CRUELTY starts a reasonable campaign against broiling lobsters alive. There are better ways of cooking them.

It also alleges that oysters, more highly organized than lobsters, when chewed alive, suffer more than lobsters, dropped in boiling water.

IT TOOK COURAGE to eat the first oysters, and now we are asked to stop eating them, for [illegible] sensitive souls may find comfort in this question, 'Do lobsters and oysters suffer any less in 'natural' death, than when they die to oblige us?' If not, since they must all die some day, they might as well die usefully, building up a higher race.

A NEW YORK STOCK exchange seat sold last week for $190,000, five thousand more was offered for another seat. At $195,000, all the exchange seats are worth $214,500,000. They will be worth twice that, if we mind our business and keep prosperity.

IN APRIL, MANY stock exchange records were broken. Excepting four April days, more than two million shares were dealt in, each day, the month's total being 49,635,616 shares.

If $200,000 is more than you can afford for a seat, investigate the new exchange just established in Seattle. Seats there [illegible] will be worth more than New York seats today. Prices are just starting in this country, or as Mr. Rogers puts it "you ain't seen nothing yet."

BRITAIN WILL GIVE votes to all women twenty-one years old. Thanks to war, and the [illegible], women in Britain outnumber men by two millions and theoretically the British empire should now be ruled by women.

In fact, however, men, or rather a small thinking group of men, will rule as hitherto. One look at this country proves that votes do not really rule. Intelligence and cunning outweigh votes.

Trout and Sunshine in New Hampshire

By Jack Conway

MR. BOSTON sported a brand new sunburn when he greeted the gang in the Sporting Department today. "Just blew in from New Hampshire," said the veteran. "I have heard Jack Delaney and Jack Sharkey speak in such glowing terms of the benefits to be derived from New Hampshire air," resumed the veteran, "that I decided to investigate the matter.

"I [illegible] to [illegible] tell of the magnificent splendor [illegible] first hand view of paradise as I sat in a [illegible] centre of Silver Lake, 14 miles [illegible] North [illegible]. The sun sparkled and [illegible] over [illegible] rippling lakes. Along [illegible] everything was green and shouting that Spring had arrived.

In the distance snow capped Mount Washington looked down and smiled on the entire world.

"Spring has come a month earlier this year," said Jim Robertson, a former marine, who is now leading the quiet and peaceful life of a mountain guide.

Mr. Boston.

"JACK DONAHUE, the former Boston College football captain, had invaded the mountains with me, and he felt that the best way to get the real low down on the benefits of the New Hampshire air was to go trout fishing.

"It's a [illegible] to go trout fishing when you happen to know Jim Robertson. He [illegible] fixes up the reels and lines, packs the grub, baits the [illegible] and then gently places his friends in his [illegible]. Just so you will feel as [illegible] are at home, Jim insists on [illegible].

"Jim [illegible] of some 232 pounds. Holy Cross linemen [illegible] attest to this fact. And I must confess [illegible] to give away weight to many heavyweights. [illegible]

"As [illegible] Jim told us of the wonders of Silver Lake.

"[illegible] so many fish [illegible] is hardly enough room for them [illegible] said Jim.

"[illegible] prompted me to inquire why the fish were not biting.

"[illegible] are queer creatures [illegible] answered Jim. 'You cannot coax them. They [illegible] feel [illegible].'

"The morning passed and the warm noon sun beat down upon us. Still no fish.

"'Is it true, Jim,' I asked, 'that people have caught fish by using only [illegible]?'

"'[illegible] I have seen the fish in Silver Lake tumbling around so [illegible] that it would have been an easy matter to have [illegible].'

"'If I see [illegible] boat I'll jump in and grab him around the neck,' said Jack Donahue, without batting an eyelash.

"WE didn't get any fish during the morning, but Jim did cook a fine steak dinner on shore. He made a fire inside of a flock of boulders and turned out a meal that would have done justice to any hotel chef.

"The only trouble with Jim was that he wouldn't permit Jack Donahue to do any real work after dinner. Jim said the trout always did bite best in the [illegible].

"[illegible] to the spot in the lake where he had never missed getting trout [illegible] I saw was Donahue holding down the stern of the boat.

"The sun was beginning to drop low in the western skies. The reflection of the sun's rays on the snow capped mountain peaks resulted in [illegible].

"[illegible] telling stories of the thousands of [illegible] of Silver Lake. He even put new bait on my [illegible].

"[illegible]," said Jim.

"I got to talking football with Donahue and forgot about trout. My [illegible] the spoon spinning around many yards away [illegible] and full of enthusiasm. [illegible] and over the side of the [illegible] as though a school of sharks were [illegible]. [illegible] I set the trout, played him a bit and [illegible] into Jim's net. I was [illegible] weighed five pounds.

"THE village was down at the wharf to greet us.

"[illegible] said Jim. 'I usually get [illegible]. [illegible] that next time you come up [illegible] take you to a place where you will get bigger fish and [illegible] into the boat.'

"[illegible] and line?' I asked innocently.

"'[illegible] and reels,' replied Jim.

"[illegible] Delaney and Sharkey have gained [illegible] spending their spare moments amid the [illegible] in the mountains of New Hampshire."

Mlle. Corson Hurt Water-Skiing

New York, May 2 (AP)—Mlle. Gade Corson, [illegible] swam the English Channel, and who plans to sail [illegible] again [illegible] in the Hudson [illegible].

An [illegible] exhibition staged for the benefit of [illegible] from [illegible] was far from a marked success because a boat could [illegible] speed enough to keep the skis on the surface of the water.

Mrs. Corson, as a result, rode through the water like a half submerged submarine and was painfully bruised by [illegible] debris.

FREE INSTRUCTIONS IN SWIMMING FOR BOYS

Boys who do not know how to swim are to be given an opportunity to learn by the Boston Boys' Club athletic director, Nat Hurwitz.

Instruction will be given boys in the tanks at the Roxbury and Charlestown divisions of the Boys' Club during May. Gil Eaton will instruct at Roxbury, while Belmont Gould will instruct at Charlestown.

A membership ticket for the month will be sold for five cents. This includes towels, soap and instruction.

5 PRO SPORT EVENTS DREW 170,000 IN N. Y.

New York, May 2—Five professional sporting events in Greater New York yesterday attracted 170,000 persons, which is perhaps a record attendance for one day. An even greater number witnessed amateur athletic events in the public parks and playgrounds. The day's turnout furnished a remarkable [illegible] of the drawing power of sports in America.

Five Men Cut From Crimson Squad

Five members of the Harvard varsity baseball squad were sent to the second team today when Coach Fred Mitchell made his last cut of the season. The players remaining with the varsity will be carried during the remainder of the year.

Those who report to the second team today are Solomon Andrews and Ernest Molloy, pitchers, Dabe Donaldson, catcher; Charles F. McGehee, first baseman, and George Bennett, outfielder.

PADDOCK RUNS OUT ON N. A. A. U. MEET

Los Angeles—Charles Paddock, champion sprinter, now engaged in filming a picture here, has announced May 2 he would run no more this year. Paddock declared it impossible to combine art and athletics.

The champion said he did not wish his retirement to be regarded as permanent, but he admitted he would be unable to appear in the National A. A. U. events this season.

Harry Hooper Named Pilot of Mission Club

San Francisco, May 2.—Harry Hooper, former Boston and Chicago American League outfield star, has been today named manager of the San Francisco Mission Club of the Pacific Coast League. He succeeds Wild Bill Leard, who was released three weeks ago. Hooper will play the outfield, as well as pilot the club.

Hooper played in the outfield with the Boston Red Sox team along with Tris Speaker and Duffy Lewis. After 12 years in Boston, he was with the Chicago White Sox for another five years.

His home is in Capitola, Cal.

HARVARD RACES NAVY SATURDAY

Three workouts this week will close the training of the Harvard crews for the races with the Naval Academy crew at Annapolis on Saturday. Workouts will be held this evening and tomorrow, while Coach Ed Brown has called for a race on the Basin on Wednesday.

It is expected that the crews will leave Cambridge on Thursday and have one workout at Annapolis on Friday afternoon. Two crews will make the trip. The rosters have not been made as yet by Coach Brown and probably will not be made public until after the race on Wednesday.

The first crew is practically decided upon. Jack Watts will be at stroke, and the seating towards the bow will be Murchie, No. 7; Clark, No. 6; Ladd, No. 5; Saltonstall, No. 4; Emmett, No. 3; Farnham, No. 2; Ames, bow; and Sullivan, coxswain.

Captain Geoffrey Platt is back with the crews, but Coach Brown announced this morning that his leader would not race against the Navy. Platt will make the trip but will view the race from the coaches' launch.

EAGLES FACE BUSY WEEK IN SPORTS

The busiest week of the Spring is in store for Boston College's athletes. The varsity and freshman ball teams will see action as well as the freshman track team which meets the Holy Cross [illegible] on Friday afternoon, at the Heights.

On top of this the Eagles will hold their eighth annual interscholastic schoolboy meet on Saturday afternoon.

The initial contest of the week will be a ball game between the Eagle fresh and Bartlett's college at Alumni Field tomorrow. It will be the first game of the season for the B. C. yearlings. The first year rule will be in effect at the Heights [illegible] and the Eagles want to [illegible] freshman athletic teams on the winning road.

[illegible] has a fairly good club in the making. He has Mickey [illegible] and [illegible] Regan, two good [illegible], with [illegible] McGowan to do the battery work. The infield will be made up of Larry Gibson, [illegible], Ray Stewart and Perley Tyson [illegible] Kaneah will be the regular [illegible].

[illegible] beat the Eagles in the South by the score [illegible] down with three hits in this battle and extremely humiliated by what is considered a small college.

GOVERNORS ISLAND HORSE SHOW ON WEDNESDAY

Dobbin and Maude are coming into their own at Governors Island Wednesday when the annual Horse Show and Gymkhana will be held on the government reservation.

The day has been declared a post holiday, and it is expected that a large outpouring of civilians from the metropolitan area will augment the ranks of the soldier spectators and participants.

Inside Golf

By CHESTER HORTON

The golfer seeking to improve his play should spend a few minutes daily practicing the take-off with his hands for the back swing, as described in last week's series, for that is the true start of the back swing. One should be careful not to exaggerate the drag back, or if that principle is too awkward and you find it bothersome, drop it and start away by letting the clubhead keep just even with the hands. It really makes little difference which method you use.

KEEP CLUBHEAD EVEN WITH HANDS

The main thing is get the action into your hands at the start. The back swing is either controlled by the hands or it is controlled by the body as a whole. You can hardly take the club back with your body because that leads to an excess of body action, promoting body weaving back and forth. Also, controlling the club is a delicate and precise matter and thus it should be controlled by the delicate and sensitive muscles of the hands.

14-oz. Absolutely All Wool Worsteds with three styles of Pencil Stripes $14.75
SUIT TO YOUR MEASURE

I have just purchased a range of fine pencil stripes, as fine worsteds as America produces. I realize the strength of this statement and am open to prove same with samples. If you live a thousand miles from Mitchell The Tailor's, 281 Washington St., Boston, store, send a 2c stamp for samples of what I consider the finest worsteds, 14 oz. in weight (which I think the best weight for a suit of clothes), and I will send samples and simple system of self measurement to any part of the United States. Put the samples to any test, and if you can buy fabrics of equal quality under $35 I will be surprised.

Pencil Stripes, Fine Dark Worsteds, Absolutely All Wool, To Your Order . . . $14.75

I don't care if you are as large as a whale or as small as a gnat.

GOOD LUCK, JACK!

DADDY'S DOROTHY SAYS GOOD-BYE
Little Dorothy Sharkey gave her heavyweight contender daddy a big kiss before he left for New York today. Jack had a hard time getting away from her. She doesn't know much about prize fights, but she did know her daddy was leaving for a long time. When Jack put his youngster down finally, he smiled and said: "Dorothy is a great little kid. I've got to win for her sake."

"WE HOPE YOU WIN, JACK!"

Sharkey Leaves for New York Camp

Jack Sharkey, New England heavyweight champion, left for New York today to begin the strenuous end of his training for his 15-round bout with Jim Maloney which will be staged at the Yankee Stadium on May 19. Jack was accompanied by Mrs. Sharkey, who will supervise his diet.

SOME of the most expert of those sporting experts have come to the conclusion that I cannot be much of a champion because I didn't knock out Jack Dempsey.

"Every other champion from Sullivan's time demonstrated that he was a REAL CHAMPION by knocking out his man."

Well, the boys are entitled to their opinion. But, I wonder how many of them have stopped to recall that ONLY ONCE, since John L. became king of the boxers, has any champion knocked out his man in LESS than ten rounds, which was the limit of the distance I traveled with Dempsey.

Here is the record:

March 17, 1897—Bob Fitzsimmons knocked out James J. Corbett in Carson City, Nevada—14 rounds.

July 4, 1919—Jack Dempsey knocked out Jess Willard in Toledo, Ohio—3 rounds

Unlike most of the other champions—Dempsey excepted—I was far out in front from the beginning of the fight until the end.

Jim Corbett was ahead of John L. on points at the end of their first ten rounds—but his margin was not so great. If the fight had been for ten rounds, not over a route, Sullivan perhaps would have made it much closer for ten rounds than he did.

But John L., knowing he wasn't in the greatest [illegible] and [illegible] was conserving his energy for a long distance and Corbett was able to roll up points in the early rounds while John L. was concentrating upon getting home one killing blow. Those who were ringside spectators tell me that Willard never laid a glove on Johnson during the first ten sessions.

Certainly, in the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight, Corbett was leader by a wide margin through the first thirteen rounds, and it is a certainty that Fitzsimmons wouldn't have won if the bout had gone ten rounds.

Likewise, if the Fitzsimmons-Jeffries battle had ended in ten, Jeff wouldn't have been the winner, for Fitz was out in front on points.

Johnson had an advantage over Jeffries during the first ten rounds, but I don't think it was as great as mine over Dempsey in ten rounds.

And, so far as that Johnson-Willard fight was concerned—well, from what I hear, Willard won two rounds—the 23rd and the 26th, in which he knocked out the negro.

It's true that I didn't knock out Dempsey in ten rounds. But I don't think that anyone who saw that fight will take issue with me when I say that if our bout had been scheduled for 15 rounds—or even 12 rounds, I would have been a knockout winner.

For when the tenth ended Dempsey was [illegible] and [illegible] so [illegible] that he had to be guided to the center of the ring where he [illegible]. [illegible] his dressing room and from there to an automobile [illegible].

If that fight had gone two or five rounds longer, Dempsey, helpless because of blindness, could not have kept to his feet, and I could have knocked him out, because he couldn't

Dr. Reed Outlines Effects of Emotions on the Mind and Body Cells

Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU [illegible] remember that emotion [illegible] its effect upon the [illegible] ance anxiety, which [illegible] sensations [illegible] I have [illegible] consequently [illegible] is to provide for [illegible] and the man will suffer from what is called "functional indigestion. If his anxiety continues to obsess [illegible] long time, the cells may [illegible] permanent changes, and he [illegible] suffer from [illegible] disease of the digestive organs.

Anger, a powerful emotion, causes an exaggerated reaction of the body. It consequently causes an exaggeration of the activity of the cells of secretion.

The common ailment of nasal and [illegible] catarrh especially in childhood, may often be due to the effects of ill-regulated emotion in lowering the resistance of the body to the action of germs.

It is not necessary that the emotion should be [illegible] the conscious mind of the patient [illegible] to affect his body cells. It is just as potent or even more [illegible] and when the patient [illegible] that he [illegible] anxious or angry, or worrying [illegible] is acutely conscious [illegible]

[illegible] beyond his mind these buried-in emotions, the relics of some childish fear or mental conflict. From this hiding place they are a constant source of strain and weakness to the mind. Some people are thus troubled a little others much more.

The function of the wise physician is to analyze and [illegible] let loose these emotions and allow the patient to see that they are nothing to be very frightened about.

There are certain cells, such as those which line the bowels at the places where they curve and kink and the glandular cells of the breast and womb which have relatively little to do and which in consequence have a relatively slack nervous tone. If that tone is reduced still further by the effects of emotion, these cells may reach a point where they have no nervous tone at all. This means in effect, that they have ceased to be a part of the body and that each one works for itself without regard for its neighbors. This might explain some types of malignant disease, such [illegible] cancer, which is a multiplication of "Bolshevik" cells which have ceased to obey the orders governing the rest and to work for the common weal.

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would be very delighted [illegible] me whether it [illegible] to walk [illegible] girls or [illegible]

[illegible] CURIOUS.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to announce my engagement. I am sending out engraved [illegible] and I am having [illegible] announcement [illegible] in a local paper but I am not having a formal [illegible]

Will you please enlighten me as to my being received by my sweetheart's parents after their receiving [illegible] announcement? [illegible] and would [illegible] advice under these [illegible] READER.

YOU should not, my dear friend, have [illegible] out announcements before telling the parents of your fiance of your engagement. They should not have received the news in this formal, impersonal way. Your fiance should have told them the day that you became engaged, and then they according to tradition should come to see you and your family to welcome [illegible] to the [illegible] of the groom knew the news. After this obligatory call, all kinds of calls may be made and parties given.

If it is too late to tell your fiance's parents—that is, if the announcements have already been mailed—then I am sure that they will take this call very soon and possibly overlook not being told before. But even now, think of some way to smooth over the fact so that you will not hurt their feelings. Ask your fiance to have them come to see you soon, and very soon after that call have him take you to see them. And be so gracious and friendly that they will overlook the oral telling of your engagement.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a bride has four bridesmaids and a maid of honor, how should they enter the church?

2. When she has so many in the bridal party, does she need to have flower girls?

3. How should they enter, if the bride has only one bridesmaid and a maid of honor or two bridesmaids?

G.

FIRST the ushers, walking together two by two. Then comes two bridesmaids, the shortest ones. Then two more bridesmaids, the tallest ones. Then the maid of honor walking alone. Then, last, the bride and her father.

2. It is never necessary to have flower girls. Indeed it is not customary to have them. It is, of course, correct to have them, but it is not necessary, by any means.

3. Then one bridesmaid alone or two together, walk after the ushers, and the maid of honor walks alone in front of the bride and her father.

CHAPTER LIX.

Two seconds after Bobbie had dropped that letter into the mail box, she was sorry she had done it.

"It seems so cruel somehow to send Andy a letter like that," she thought, and she began to fish for the letter through the opening of the box with her little fingers.

But it was in vain. The letter had dropped out of her reach.

It must be [illegible] at the bottom of a [illegible] the chance she had of getting it back again. It was gone, and gone for good.

She could just see, in her mind's eye, how Andy would look when he opened that letter. First of all he would be cheerful at the prospect of news from her—and then his face would sober and darken as he read the opening sentence: "Dear Andy, this is the last letter you will ever get from me. I am going to be married to Gus [illegible]—" What a cruel letter it was. She had not meant it to be so, but she could see what it was.

Oh, well, it was too late now to cry over spilt milk. And anyway, what difference did it make how the news came to Andy that she was engaged to be married? No matter how it reached him, it would hurt him. She knew that he cared for her as few men ever cared for a woman.

She went into Henry's restaurant and ordered grape-fruit juice and black coffee. Not because she liked either of them, but because they would help to keep her thin.

She had begun that long battle that every motion-picture actress has to fight—the battle against fat.

When it came time for her to pay the check she found that she had left her little coin purse at home. She could remember just where she had left it—on her dresser when she opened it to take out a stamp for Andy's letter.

"I'm sorry, but I've left my purse at home," she told the waitress. "You'll have to trust me for a few minutes while I go and get it."

The waitress looked at her with doubtful eyes. In Hollywood where people come and go like the wind, it doesn't do to put too much faith in them and their promises. Very often they go "flat broke," and "blow," leaving behind them nothing but unpaid bills and broken promises.

"Monica's here to see you!" Mrs. Mangan greeted Bobbie as she swung open the screen door of the little white house.

And sure enough, there was Monica sitting in the [illegible] parlor at an hour when she usually was lolling in bed at home.

"Yeah, here I am. I got up before breakfast, honey love," she said in answer to Bobbie's wide-eyed look of amazement. "I haven't a thing on my stomach, but I've got plenty on my mind." She smiled [illegible] wide smile, but her eyes [illegible] worried and anxious looking.

"I'll Make You Some Coffee," Bobbie Ransom Told Her

She ran upstairs and slipped [illegible] her little coverall apron. Brought up by Aunt Gertrude as she had been, she wouldn't have thought of going into a kitchen without covering her street clothes with a crisp clean apron.

When she came downstairs again, Monica was in the kitchen.

"Shut the door," she whispered. "There's no use in letting Mrs. Mangan in on this news reel."

"News?" Bobbie echoed, closing Mrs. Mangan out of her own kitchen. "What news?"

"Very [illegible] news," Monica answered. "Lottie Schultz is going to [illegible] Roy and sue me for alienation of his affections. Roy just heard [illegible] from his lawyer and [illegible] me up."

"Don't [illegible] about it [illegible] over it." Monica smiled at her. "It isn't so [illegible] getting [illegible] in Hollywood. I shouldn't worry about the disgrace. The thing that gets my goat is that Ted Piper's gone right up in the air about it."

"Ted Piper?" echoed Bobbie, pouring coffee into the two cups. She never had thought that Ted Piper, that long lazy blond young man, made much difference to Monica, one way or the other.

"Yes, Ted Piper. You heard me the first time," Monica replied. "Simp that I was, I called him up and told him the whole thing, and he's having a fit. You see, he never knew just how thick Roy and I were—and now that Lottie's sprung this, he d[illegible] 'Ho—hum.'" She ended with a long-drawn sigh of despair.

"Have some coffee," said Bobbie, because she could think of nothing else to say. The whole mix-up was too much for her.

Monica sipped her hot coffee, and took a drag or two at one of her [illegible] cigarettes.

"What I want you to do, Bobbie, my good kid," she began then, "is to go up and call on your friend, Lottie Schultz, for me. Get it over to her that I don't want her little husband—that I wouldn't have him as a gift. That I'm sick of him, and that I never want to see him again except when he's directing me in a picture."

Bobbie shook her head, her eyes on the amber fluid in her cup.

"No, you'll have to go to see her yourself, Monica," she said. "That's the only sporting and honest way to do it."

"Still Waters Run Deep You Know," Bobbie Told Her

"I don't see why," muttered Monica, [illegible] woman wouldn't see me if I did go up to her house," she added. "She'd pro[illegible] her houseman or [illegible] to chase me away."

"[illegible]," Bobbie offered. "[illegible] you up to Lottie's this afternoon."

[illegible] Monica put her cig[illegible] case and her [illegible] back into [illegible] and got up to go.

"I certainly didn't know the Schultz woman had it in her to spring a stunt like this," she remarked with a giggle. "But then [illegible] that [illegible] kind of [illegible] and they're always the big[illegible]."

"Still waters run deep, you know," Bobbie reminded her.

But Winnie, her new maid, was "[illegible] in, Miss Bobbie," she said in her rich African voice when she opened the door. "Set right down and make you'se'f comfortable. Miss Monica be right [illegible] she say. She gone for [illegible] with Mr. Ted Piper. Set right down."

She drew forward one of the deep [illegible] chairs and pushed a footstool [illegible].

"[illegible] a little cup [illegible]," she asked hospitably. She was on such free-and-easy terms with Monica that she was on free-and-easy terms with everyone who came to see Monica too.

"No, thanks," said Bobbie, picking up a magazine and stretching out her [illegible] to the little [illegible] fire that burned rosily in the grate.

But Winnie did not go. She was in a mood for talking, and talk she did.

"Ain't this a terrible trouble what [illegible] Miss Monica?" [illegible] talk of [illegible] Miss Monica for [illegible] Mr. Roy Schultz offen Miz Roy Schultz?" she asked, and her rich [illegible] tones were deep with sympathy for Monica. "I tol' Miss Monica not to get chicken hearted, but to jes' roll right up to Miz Roy Schultz and tell her where to git off at."

Bobbie nodded, without looking up from her magazine.

"Trouble with Miss Monica is that nobody understands her," the [illegible] woman went on. "[illegible] Miss Monica [illegible] bad as bad can be [illegible] cut up and [illegible] paint her face like [illegible]. But [illegible] Miss Monica. She's just a good [illegible] woman."

At that instant [illegible] "good-time" woman flung open the door and came rushing in [illegible] by the long lanky form of Ted Piper.

Under Monica's arm was a box of candy.

"We [illegible] Sweetie Peaches," she [illegible] Bobbie [illegible]. "You [illegible]."

Bobbie [illegible] at the blond [illegible]. "I've met Mr. Piper [illegible]," she said.

"Yes [illegible] used to call me [illegible] back at her in [illegible] way. "Monica [illegible] going to see her [illegible] with Mrs. [illegible] some mis[illegible] understanding [illegible] hasn't there?"

"That [illegible] was [illegible]."

"I wanted to [illegible] Monica [illegible] going to [illegible]. There's [illegible] to know [illegible]. He just bought me this."

This was a large engagement ring [illegible] it was like a [illegible] in its brilliance.

"You're going to marry him?" cried Bobbie.

But Monica [illegible]. "Of course I [illegible]. I'm [illegible] engaged [illegible] thinks [illegible] you, you know? [illegible] jewelry and [illegible] with [illegible] and such stuff."

She kissed the diamond lovingly—not [illegible] the man [illegible] to her, but [illegible] it was worth a [illegible] grand [illegible]!

SHEER gowns and gay frocks, business and social exactments [illegible] the most trying of hygienic handicaps are a comfort women of [illegible] enjoy.

It's 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads." Thus you wear lightest frocks, dance, motor, go for hours without a moment's doubt.

Deodorizes, too; thus ending all fear of offense. 8 in 10 better class women now employ this way. Doctors advise it. Nurses widely urge it. Obtain at any store without embarrassment simply by saying "KOTEX."

Try today and you'll never again risk the uncertainty of old ways. Box of 12 costs only a few cents. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

Now she became aware the car was stopping; through the tail of her eye she could see that the nearby houses were dilapidated residences of other days, that the street was empty and poorly lighted.

The man from the front seat—not the driver—got down and opened the door of the sedan.

Weakly, Jacqueline obeyed; Red Suggs followed her to the sidewalk.

"Now, Lupino . . ." His pistol moved slightly with a gesture of command, and the man who had killed Barney The Lamp climbed out of the car.

"Everybody inside—quick!"

Jacqueline, as she passed into the damp, stale odor of the basement, heard the soft throbbing of the car outside as it stood at the curb with the engine still running, and the driver at the wheel. The door was closed behind her back and locked.

The entrance hall in which they were standing terminated abruptly eight or ten feet from the street door, in a solid concrete wall. Any further progress into the building was blocked by a black steel door five or six feet high and several feet wide—a door that Jacqueline recognized as the type used on bank vaults. Where the lock should have been was a thick square of metal sunken in the centre and in a bright, steel ring was a polished dial.

DAILY SHORT STORY

In the Rose Room

By EVANGELINE WEIR

TO Dr. Sill her hospital was her life. Not in a narrow sense, for she was a woman of deep sympathies, giving herself freely and gladly to those who came under her care for a time, then disappeared in the great flood of life beyond its walls. Every dollar that came into her skillful hands was invested in her work and gave to her pleasure that other women received in spending for their homes or for themselves. "The spirit of the hive," her nurses and assistant doctors called her.

Human nature with all its faults and virtues made a deep appeal to the doctor, and her interest never lagged as the years passed. Young and old; poor and rich, women anxious to live and women who coveted death; women good and bad, all received the best she was able to give.

Dr. Sill was thinking of the woman in the Rose Room. She knew the effect and value of color on a certain class of invalids, and her soft green, gray and rose rooms had proved a success beyond her own speculation. When she had given the finest of all the rooms—the Rose Room—to the woman who lay half the time with closed eyes and lips tightly pressed together, she had hoped that her patient would relax, and perhaps confess that something which so troubled her mind. She had tried and failed to reach her inner-consciousness, and knew if her condition continued that she would slip beyond human aid.

Dr. Sill prepared orange juice and took it herself to the Rose Room where she found her patient crying. She put her arms about her, holding her close, unable to find suitable words.

"It is the room," the young woman said when the tears had spent themselves. "There were three rose rooms in my life."

Dr. Sill waited; she knew the confession was coming.

"My room at home was white and rose; my husband furnished such a room for me when I married; there was another room all white and rose which I never occupied."

"You must tell me," Dr. Sill said. "My own marriage was not a happy one. I had the rose room and lost it."

"You!"

"I am a woman in spite of my doctor's degree."

"And you are happy without it—the rose room?"

"Out of my failure and bitterness has come peace, and I keep a Rose Room for those who need it."

"Are you married?" she asked with interest.

"I [illegible]."

"Were you in love with your husband?"

"At the beginning, and again at the end when Death knocked at the door," Dr. Sill said softly.

"Did you forgive?"

"To understand is to forgive. I understood just at the end."

She closed her eyes, with her head still against Dr. Sill's breast.

"I loved three men in three different ways and I lost them all. The first was my father; the second the one man; the third my old play mate and later my husband. At one time they were all friends; now they are enemies because of me. I am alone, alone, alone!" she wailed.

After a time she grew quieter and continued her story.

"I was a spoiled, wilful girl, and three men who loved me were ready to give—to give unselfishly—whenever I made a demand upon them. When I promised Davy to be his wife, John bore his pain silently and continued to give and I to take. I liked to feel my power over them. Close to the day set for our wedding Davy and I quarreled and I said I would never forgive him. He answered that he did not care at all, and immediately tried to arouse my jealousy by paying attention to another girl. I went to John and begged him to marry me, saying I was done with Davy. At last he consented, though Father warned him, and I went to the altar with fear and trembling and married him to spite Davy."

"Poor child," Dr. Sill said with feeling.

"The three men I loved most in all the world were excited, angry and unfair to each other. When Davy and John left the house, all three were enemies. Father refused to speak to me, so I put on my hat and coat and took a train to another city—for my home is not in this town. I kept on walking until I reached the entrance to your hospital. I came in; then I knew nothing further until I found myself in bed with a nurse in attendance."

One night she had a fever and did not know Dr. Sill as she sat beside her holding her hand. She was living again in the past, and it was thus the doctor learned the name and address of her father and of the other two men. Immediately she telegraphed separately to the three of them and by midnight all had arrived. Anger at each other was written on their faces.

Dr. Sill looked at each man, then down at the unconscious girl on the pillow.

"Gentlemen, it is time to forget and forgive," she said gravely.

No one moved—no one spoke.

Then the sick girl sang in a soft low voice part of an old song known to them all. One man arose and held out his hand first to the younger man, then to the other.

"Let it be with us as it was before we quarreled."

Dr. Sill went to him with outstretched hand.

"You are John," she said warmly. "You love her best of all. You are quickest to forgive."

They kept the watch together through the darkness until the gray of dawn, when the girl opened her eyes—eyes full of intelligence and love.

"My men, my three dear men, oh you have come at last. Kiss me daddy, you are first." Then her eyes wandered to David's face, but she held out her hand to her husband. "John, it is your turn."

Dr. Sill was crying softly.

"Davy, Davy!" The voice from the pillow was very soft.

Their lips met and the others closed their eyes. When they opened them she had passed on.

Davy and the departed one's father went out arm in arm into Dr. Sill's little study. When she returned to the rose room she found the husband with the still, cold hand clasped in his own, keeping watch beside the quiet face.

"You are John, who loved her best of all," the doctor said softly.

David Copperfield

By Charles Dickens

"DAVID COPPERFIELD" contains a host of memorable characters. As a small boy David lived with his pretty mother, a widow, and his nurse, Peggotty. He took a dislike to Mr. Murdstone, a suitor for his mother's hand.

SHORTLY after, David went to Yarmouth to visit Peggotty's relations: her brother, Mr. Peggotty, a bluff, big-hearted fisherman; her nephew, Ham, and her niece, Little Em'ly. David promptly fell in love with blonde Little Em'ly.

THEY believed that "firmness" was an outstanding virtue and they were firm—mostly at David's expense. Finally, construing the boy's unhappiness as sulkiness, Murdstone beat him. David bit his hand. (Continued Tomorrow.)

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

THIS is the time of year when half the people in the United States are suffering from Spring fever. The rest of them are lazy without any excuse.

ONE guy has been sleeping so long he makes Rip Van Winkle look like Paul Revere.

BUT nothing could disturb him. He even wore alarm clocks for ear-muffs.

HE'S been slumbering for five weeks and his wife's hoping that he'll wake up long enough to accept a job as night watchman.

SHE thinks he's got sleeping sickness but she's not sure. She doesn't know whether to have the doctor perform an operation or an autopsy.

HE spent $375 for a new bed and he's probably trying to get his money's worth.

HE'S already slept through three payments.

HE hasn't shaved for two months. His face looks like the label on a box of cough drops.

TWO more days and he'll be able to use his whiskers for a bed spread.

HIS wife's hoping that he'll sleep until December so that she can hide the Christmas presents in his beard.

NEXT week she's going to drag him in the parlor and use him for a bear rug.

THE poor fellow had a nightmare the other evening. He dreamed he was working.

HE'S a somnambulist, but he's so lazy he won't even walk in his sleep.

HE can't help sleeping, he inherits it. When he was a baby his folks kept him in bed until he was six months old.

LAZINESS is a terrible thing, but when a smart man gets Spring fever in his bones he uses somebody else's dice.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston Evening American.

"Brown's nerve is the limit."

"What's he done now?"

"He called yesterday morning to borrow a gun to shoot a dog that kept him awake nights."

"Well?"

"My dog's been shot."

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

THERE seem to be just two kinds of people in the world—those who are starving for love and those who are "fed up" on it.

A man is so versatile that he can sit in a night club at 3 a. m. and weep over a "Home-and-Mother" song, while his wife is sitting up waiting for him.

* * *

Most men never know or feel the thrill of the divine fire of love because they are so busy all their lives running after every little "false alarm."

* * *

When a woman feels like "emoting," she doesn't wait for the Ideal Man to come along. She just picks out the nearest personable man who wears the right collars, drapes her illusions on him, uncorks her imagination, and splashes over!

Divorce is the "freedom" which permits a man to stay out as late as he wants, drink all the bad liquor he cares to, eat all the things that disagree with him, go without his overshoes and get as sick as he likes!

* * *

It is awfully easy for a woman to see the "funny side" when some OTHER woman's husband makes an idiot of himself in his efforts to be the life of the party.

A little Summer matrimonial vacation is a good tonic for love. But don't leave your husband alone so long that he acquires the "BACHELOR habit" and learns to take care of himself and to prefer solitude or a crowd to your exclusive company.

* * *

A woman is not actually passe until she stops glancing in the shop windows for a glimpse of her reflection.

LITTLE BOBBIE AND HIS FATHER

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

MA buyed herself a Kammio. I aint sure if that is spelt rite, Kammio, but that is how it sounds, it is the naim of a julery ornamint, you know what I mean, a Kammio.

Look at that X-quisait profeel, sed Ma to my dad wen she showed him the Kammio she buyed, jest look.

I am looking, sed Pa. How much?

You need not git goose flesh, deer, sed Ma kind of hauty. I paid for this Kammio out of my own munny.

How much? sed Pa aggenn.

I sed I paid for it out of my own munny, sed Ma kind of hauty. What do you cair how much?

Oh, I was jest wondering in my childish way, sed Pa.

Well sed Ma, if you feel that you must know, I paid thirty dollars for that Kammio. It was a rare bargain & I grasped it, sed Ma.

You cud buy a awful lot of stakes & chops with thirty beens, sed Pa.

Life hoalds noabler things in stoar for us than stakes & chops, sed Ma. Sumtimes our souls cry out for the butiful, sed Ma. I love butiful things, sed Ma, so I bought this Kammio.

It is all rite with me, I aint kicking, sed Pa.

I can think of no good reeson why you shud kick, indeed, sed Ma. Wen you want anything you buy it, do you not?

I am not B-litteling it, sed Pa, but I nevver bought myself any Kammios, sed Pa.

See here, sed Ma, I do not relish yure manner of B-litteling the things I buy for myself, sed Ma.

I am not B-litteling it, sed Pa. Thirty bucks aint a thing to B-littel, sed Pa. But you may keep it, sed Pa.

You can bet quite a sum of currentsy that I will keap it, sed Ma. That is what I bought it for, to keap & ware.

Bobbie, sed Pa, sum day you will be a groan up man & you will marry a sweet & shrinking littel blonde, sed Pa, she will tell you that 2 can live cheeper than one, sed Pa, & the next day she will hussel out to the stoar & buy herself a Kammio, sed Pa. But you will not lose yure temper, Bobbie, sed Pa, whatevver you do. The Kammio wont be worth thirty cents, tho she will pay thirty dollars for it, sed Pa, but you will smile tho yure hart be braking, sed Pa. Unless you can stand punnishment without batting a eye, Bobbie, sed Pa, remain singel.

That is quite a speech, to be sure, sed Ma. Every time I buy sum pretty littel thing for myself, sed Ma, you talk all the pleshur out of it with yure snears, sed Ma. I feel like braking down, sed Ma.

Thare, thare, wife, sed Pa, doant brake down. Brake me if you will, sed Pa, but doant brake down, & beesides, sed Pa, I was only joaking. A queen must haf her crown jules, sed Pa.

& then Ma felt better & she patted Pa on the cheak.

NEW RIVER CO. PLANS CHANGE

Directors of Boston-listed New River Co. propose a capital readjustment, under the terms of which 72,632 shares of 6 per cent. cumulative preferred and 38,379 shares of common, both of $100 par value, would be converted into 256.75 shares of new capital stock without par value.

It is proposed that for each share of present preferred stock there be exchanged three shares of new stock, plus a payment of $10 cash. For each share of common would be exchanged one share of new stock.

Owners of a majority of each class of stock, including all directors, have deposited or agreed to deposit their stock. The time for deposit is limited to June 15.

"For the ten years ending Dec. 31, 1926, the average annual dividend paid on New River Co. preferred stock has been $7.05 a share, and yet unpaid dividends on the preferred stock now amount to $39 a share or a total of $2,832,648. These unpaid back dividends are a carry-over from conditions prevailing in the ten years ending in 1916.

Following committee of stockholders has been appointed to carry through the plan: Junius Beebe, George A. Butman, Robert H. Gross, F. Ward Paine, Henry N. Sweet, all of Boston, and William J. Davis of Scranton, Pa.

MAYOR NICHOLS
"As a measure of recreation and information I consider radio to be of the highest benefits to all."

RADIO DIALOG by C. WILLIAM RADOS

LISTENING IN on a new set last night we did not master the dials, gadgets, buttons and other complicated machinery in time to hear very much.

The set was a super heterodyne with eight tubes, two dials, about nine knobs and a red light. We understood the red light, because red means "stop." Maybe that's why the signals stopped coming.

We did hear WEAF, WJZ, WVRL on the loop just about as loud as we wanted to hear them. There was no fading, but static kept crackling ceaselessly. With a super-het the great pleasure is both in distance reception, and the ease with which distant stations are picked up.

MAYOR FAVORS CITY RADIO

By C. WILLIAM RADOS.

"I am heartily in favor of a municipally owned and operated radio station and when the time comes, as it will, Boston will have its official station."

Mayor Nichols so asserted in his office, surrounded by portraits of once distinguished city officials; men to whom radio would have seemed a miracle.

To them the mention of a mayor speaking to the entire population of the city while this population was scattered in its various homes would have apparently been magic. Yet Malcolm E. Nichols knows well the value of radio.

"I consider radio of the greatest importance in conveying municipal information to the people," he said. "The listener will absorb and think about his city's business in a five-minute radio talk when he might not otherwise notice it in a newspaper.

CITY OWNED RADIO SOON.

"The day is coming when every city must have its official radio station. The investment is luckily not great, but city news is of such great value that the operation of a station is a proper investment.

The time is not yet but whether a year or ten years goes by Boston will have its municipal station. I am very strongly in favor of such action."

The Mayor went on to say that "municipal news, the explanation of functioning of various departments, first hand stories of administrative policy and changes, department plans and problems, discussion of the great questions of taxation, transportation, education and other matters; all these will make closer the feeling between government and governed."

LIKES TO LISTEN.

The Mayor likes to listen to radio. He considers it as a great and important means of recreation. He considers it a legitimate means of entertainment. And as a means of widespread education, the Mayor intends to renew his popular radio speeches.

Mayor Nichols got his first view of this phase of radio when he started talking over the air. In response to the series of six radio talks just ended, the Mayor has received a great volume of mail. The letters commending his talks and other opinions have definitely proved to Mr. Nichols that municipal radio talks must increase in number and variety. On one end is the private citizen too busy to understand government details. On the other end is the Mayor and the department heads. Radio is the connecting highway. Some day the public, through its representatives, will own this highway.

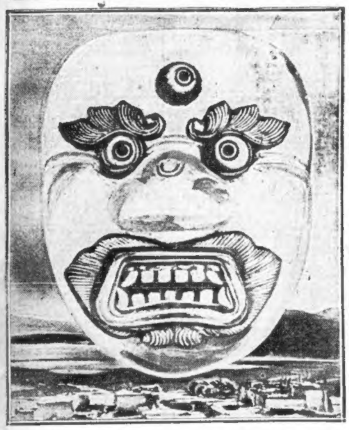
NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Meet Her and Shudder

She Is Palden Lhama



THIS CHEERFUL FACE, WITH A PUG NOSE, IS THE "BLOOD-DRINKING GODDESS" OF TIBET.

One of the most miserable races on this earth, as regards backwardness and superstition, lives in Tibet. They have their Grand Llama, ruled by clever Buddhist priests that surround him, used for their purposes, replaced by another when he dies.

They have their gigantic monasteries, filled with loafers that live on the hard working, superstitious population. And they have among other gods and goddesses this terrible looking lady, whose name is Palden Lhama, known as the "blood-drinking goddess."

This horrible creature is called by gullible Tibetans "one of the Eight Terribles." Mr. Beasley, who owns this goddess, informs you that the officiating Llama, or Buddhist priest, uses the blood-drinking goddess to attract vicious demons. Then he "exorcises them," which should not be very difficult, since they don't exist.

The ignorant creatures that live under the Llama's control pay him for rendering a service which means nothing. He lives WITHOUT work, they WORK HARD.

Observe that this blood-drinking lady is made to look like a Tibetan—our gods and goddesses are always made to resemble ourselves, more or less. A Greek philosopher said, "If the camels had a god, it would have FOUR LEGS AND A HUMP.

This lady has eyes too close together, usually a bad sign. She has a queer eye in the middle of her forehead, one of many strange references to the "pineal gland," which may or may not have been active as an "eye" when all created things had one eye only.

She has a pug nose, so have other ladies surrounding her in Tibet, an ill-formed nose, meaning lack of intellectual development.

Generally speaking, you can judge the mind by the nose.

This lady is related to Lu-Yuen, the god of Disease, who also has three eyes, and she is a cousin to the "Thunder Goddess."

Very likely, this blood-drinking lady was borrowed originally from India, where Kali, the wife of Siva, the Destroyer of the Brahmin Trinity, is the goddess and patroness of the Thuggees, whose religious rites take the form of "ritualistic murder."

Let us be glad we haven't any gods or goddesses of this kind. Think how the fundamentalists and modernists would fight, if we had.

There's Hope at Last

A Friendly Fish by the Name of Gambusiafinis Is to Hunt Mosquitoes

Mosquito victims of yore who dread the coming of Summer may take heart. Aid is coming. This year, in many waters hereabout, they are to be assisted by a little friend by the name of Gambusiafinis.

Gambusiafinis is a poor fish about three-quarters of an inch long that spends its whole life trying to benefit mankind and has received no more credit for its efforts than as though it had loaned money to France.

This year, scientists tell us, Gambusiafinis will swarm in the marshy waters hither and yon, and that is important, for the Gambusiafinis is a glutton who eats, every hour, fifty-six times its own weight in mosquito larvae. Thus the larvae never get a chance to make the life of the Summer resorter miserable.

However glad the tidings may be, it may be well to get the screens out and load the rifles and shotguns, for no matter how hard the Gambusiafinis works to quell its inordinate appetite, he and his relatives will probably not get all the larvae. A few will doubtless escape to grow up and lead sinful lives.

But stop and think what our condition would be without Gambusiafinis. We owe him at least a vote of thanks.

MUCH DEPENDS ON KEEPING HOME

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PROBABLY more human happiness depends upon how a home is kept than upon any other thing.

Previously our schools have devoted little time to this important subject. Pupils are taught geometry, geography and arithmetic, they are taught logic and Latin and music and all sorts of plain and ornamental information, but not home-keeping.

It is necessary to elevate the business of home-making into an art, to get people enthusiastic about it and to impress upon the mind of youth its dignity and importance.

At the State Teachers' College in Pittsburgh, Kansas, they have established a house for the purpose of developing right standards of courtesy, hospitality and social graces, etc., all necessary in the successful management of a home.

They have secured a house, such a one as would be used by a family of moderate means, and instruct pupils how to take care of it.

They have a house manager who plans menus, does marketing, presides at the table and so on. They teach the girls how to cook, prepare food and keep the kitchen in order.

Another girl assists the cook in preparing salads, cares for the dining-room and acts as waitress.

Still another is called housekeeper. She dusts and keeps the house in clean order.

The duties are rotated so that a student gets practice in every kind of home work.

They have guests and often entertain the president of the college and the faculty.

The house is managed on a budget plan and all expenditures are limited.

The records are kept in permanent form.

The house is self-supporting and the students pay for room and board.

As there is no child in the house they are going to adopt a child and study child training.

Since so much depends upon the way a home is kept this sort of training seems to be sensible.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

WITHIN the long, low-ceilinged room the cheery hearth-fire glows; without, clouds shroud the sky in gloom, the March wind wildly blows. Within are laughter, warmth and ease to lend the hours delight, while March wind whistles through the trees and frolics down the night. All through the long, low-ceilinged room, though gay lights rise and fall as hearth-fire's bright flames, flower-like, bloom, love's light is more than all! For like unlighted candles there were laughter, ease and mirth, without love's golden torch to flame, love's flame to lend them worth. What is the price of room and fire, of laughter, shrill and fleet, unless love's joyousness conspire with these to make them sweet? Within the long, low room waits cheer; flames, dancing, rise and fall; mirth, laughter, song and peace are here with love to light them all!

"ENGLISH as she is spoke" vitally interests an Allston woman who came from England. She ordered some corn-on-cob in a restaurant. After a time, following the serving of the order, the waiter approached and said: "Is there anything else you would like, madam?" "Yes," she replied, "where is the cob?" In the talk which followed she explained that in England "cob" is a kind of biscuit.

CONFIDENCE.

Strong on detail and figures, EDWARD J. CONDON, MAYOR NICHOLS' private secretary, is up to his eyes in work daily in the inner office in what is known as Agony Corner in CITY HALL. His advice on important matters goes a great way in solving many municipal problems. The MAYOR places great confidence in CONDON'S judgment.

PAUL REVERE'S RIDE.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY rare reference volume reveals the fact that PAUL REVERE undertook an earlier ride than that which is annually celebrated. He rode from Boston to Portsmouth, N. H., with a message that led to the seizure of guns and ammunition at Fort Constitution, then William and Mary, at New Castle, N. H. This is observed as the first open act of war against England, antedating Concord and Lexington by months.

BANK YOURS?

GEORGE L. BARNES, Commissioner of Savings Bank Life Insurance, points out that deposits in Massachusetts are not so much limited as many people suppose. COMMISSIONER BARNES says: "The law provides that any person may deposit $3,000 in a savings bank. There are 196 savings banks. Therefore an individual in this Commonwealth could deposit something over a half million dollars in our savings banks."

TOUGH.

Owners of boats who are preparing them for the coming season are having their troubles with teakwood, which is not only practically impervious to weather and water, but also is one of the toughest woods to work. "It is easier to use a sanding machine when a quarter inch of teakwood has to be taken off," said one of the men connected with a BOSTON shipbuilding yard in commenting on the toughness of it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I WAS so sure that I was different from other people when I started this business of life.

Undoubtedly other people had their good points but none of them could possibly love beautiful things as I loved them—

None of them could have been misunderstood as I was misunderstood.

None of them could have experienced my delicate ecstasies, my terrible confusions and humiliations, my soaring ambitions and dark despairs.

Yes, I was certainly different. Without a doubt I was the Only One of my kind.

I was very young when I entertained that idea, but I kept right on entertaining it for quite a while after my extreme youth. Then very, very slowly, and quite grudgingly I realized that maybe I wasn't the Only One of my kind. There might be a few more like me—perhaps a dozen or even a hundred. There might be even a very small and restricted class of individuals in the world who were my model. Undoubtedly I was the de luxest of all but, roughly speaking, we all tuned in on the same high vibration.

So I thought at twenty.

Nor was it entirely out of my system by twenty-five.

It Riled Her

However, by the time several things had begun to happen to me.

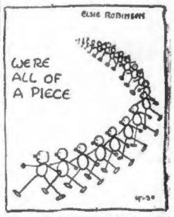
I had walked right out into the middle of life and to my surprise and chagrin, nothing special had happened. No stars had fallen at sight of me. No earthquake had been pulled off. Kings and Queens and magazine editors hadn't sent out emissaries to look me up. In short, nobody, nobody at all, seemed to realize that I, the Different Person, had arrived. Instead every one treated me as if I was quite an ordinary individual, with no tastes or aspirations that weren't shared by the whole gang

Naturally, this didn't register very well with me. I spent quite a time being sorry for myself about it. I said some mighty mean things about my fellow citizens because of it. I called them sheep just to get even. If I remember, I even decided that there wasn't any God for if there had been, wouldn't He be making a fuss over me? Of course He would. Therefore, there couldn't possibly be any God.

Yes, I thought all those things—and made myself most miserable in the process. And then gradually it began to occur to me that the rest of the world might be right. Maybe I wasn't so darned different after all. Maybe I didn't have any exclusive corner on all the fine attitudes. Was it possible that other people, quite stupid, common, ignorant, unpleasant people shared by sensitiveness and love of beauty, my fears and doubts, my dreams and distresses?

Looked About

I looked about me. I began to ask questions and listen to the answers. I began to look into other lives and hearts. And to my amazement and intense humiliation, I found that it was not only possible that I was like others, but that it was quite, quite true.



ELSIE ROBINSON
WE'RE ALL OF A PIECE

WE WERE ALL OF A PIECE.

Our outsides and environments, our manners and customs, our jobs and programs might be and often were entirely different. But behind it all, in the secret place of the soul where each one of us really lived, we were all the same. There, in the darkness, we dreamed the same dreams, sent up the same pitiful prayers, shuddered with the same fear, glowed with the same love, agonized with the same hunger.

There in the darkness, where only God could see us, we were all alike—all frightened children who had lost their way home.
